VICTIM PULLED TO DEEP WATER, BROTHER SAYS

Gertrude Jones, 14, Victim Of Tragedy When Wading In Scioto

OFFICIALS SEEK BODY

Willie Jackson Accused Of Ignoring Warning Child Could Not Swim

Searchers, including sheriff's deputies, policemen and volunteers, are dragging swift waters of the Scioto river in quest of the body of 14-year-old Gertrude Jones, daughter of Herbert Jones, 926 South Washington street. The little girl drowned about 2:30 Thursday afternoon when a swift current pulled her under the water.

The Jones girl had been wading in a shallow part of the river with several other girls when she lost her life. Police Chief W. F. McCrady said that the Jones girl's brother, Herbert, Jr., 11, told him that his sister had been "dragged from shallow water into deeper water by Willie Jackson, and that he let go of her, the current pulling her under."

Brother Describes Tragedy

Chief McCrady said the Jones youth told him and Patrolman Turney Ross that he kept calling to the Jackson youth that his sister could not swim, but that the youth continued to pull her into the deeper water.

Chief McCrady lodged the Jackson boy, who gave his age as 16, in city jail Thursday evening where he remained Friday booked for investigation. Young Jackson lives at 434 East Union street, with his mother and stepfather, William Crosby. His father, Stanley Jackson, is a patient in the U. S. Veterans' hospital at Dayton. Police said that young Jackson has been called to their attention at other times. He was in sheriff's custody last October when he chased a group of smaller children on East Ohio street. He was fined $10 and costs at that time by Squire B. T. Hedges on a charge of driving an automobile without lights. Jackson gave his age as 18 at that time, although authorities believe the age of 16 which he gave Thursday evening is more nearly correct.

The Jones girl recently moved to Circleville with her father and brother from near Whisler. Her father is employed at the Eshelman mill. Her mother is dead.

Several View Drowning

Chief McCrady said the Jones boy who saw his sister go under the water told him that among children at the river at the time of the fatality were Jackson, Charles Ford, 13, Clinton street; Lucille Ford and Betty Russell, who were wading with Gertrude Jones. Several other children also were at the scene of the tragedy.

The fatal accident happened south of Circleville near Chippy island at a swimming spot called "The Big Hole". Persons got to (Continued on Page Three)

Military Revolt Puts End To "Strictly Neutral" Leadership

BULLETIN

MONTEVIDEO, June 4—A military revolt in Argentina today overthrew the "strictly neutral" regime of President Ramon S. Castillo and troops of the First Army Division marched into Buenos Aires to seize government buildings.

Castillo fled his capital with several members of his cabinet, taking refuge aboard the gunboat Drummond in the river Plate. Latest advices said he was determined to resist the revolt, but just what forces were at his command were problematical.

The advices said that the revolutionary movement, which is headed by General Pedro Ramirez, the war minister, and General Rawson, chief of cavalry, appears to have the support of army troops in Buenos Aires as well as the Argentine air corps.

CHAPLIN DENIES ACCUSATION OF MOTHER - TO - BE

LOS ANGELES, June 4—Charlie Chaplin, noted comedian and film producer, made a flat denial today that he was the father of the unborn child of Joan Barry, 22-year-old titian-haired screen aspirant.

"I am not responsible for Miss Barry's condition," the actor declared in a 40-word statement issued through the office of his attorney.

"Miss Barry," he said, "states her unborn child was conceived in December last. The first claim on me by Miss Barry was in May and was accompanied by a demand for payment of $150,000."

The blunt, sharply-worded statement was Chaplin's response to the paternity suit filed yesterday in which he was named as the father of the baby expected by the girl. It was filed by the girl's mother, Mrs. Gertrude E. Barry, as "guardian ad litem" for the unborn child.

Miss Barry petitioned the court to declare the actor to be child's father and compel him to provide for its support. She asked for $10,000 for pre-natal care, $2500 a month for support and $5000 for attorney's fees.

Ghost Voice On Rome Radio Tells People Hour Of Liberation Coming

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, June 4—The navy announced today that the successful U. S. invasion of Attu island in the Aleutians resulted in 1,535 American casualties, including 342 dead, 1,135 wounded and 58 missing.

With Japanese casualties officially reported by the navy as 1,791 killed and 11 captured, this would mean that the enemy losses were about five times as great as those of the United States.

By International News Service

Invasion fears in Europe reached new height today coincident with announcement of new battering assaults on Italy's Mediterranean fortress outpost on the island of Pantelleria and a raid by Allied bombers on the Italian mainland port of Naples.

Reports received in London from inside Europe told of anti-invasion exercises throughout Italy, particularly in the Leghorn area and near ports of the Italian "boot." The Rome radio's exhortations to Italians to "remain calm" were reported interrupted by a ghost voice warning the populace: "It is all in vain. The hour of liber. tion is coming. Down with Il Duce!"

Other dispatches told of feverish defense preparations along the French, Dutch and Belgian coasts, where all road signs likely to aid invading forces were reported being torn down.

A BBC broadcast to the French people meanwhile warned metropolitan France to be wary of false Axis reports of actual invasion. The broadcast pointed out that such false reports might be given to "smoke out" patriots eager to help Allied forces.

Pantelleria was assaulted anew from both sea and air. Allied naval forces which shelled the tiny island yesterday off the east coast of Tunis yesterday encountered small resistance from ground batteries, which caused no damage or casualties.

The warships sent shells crashing into harbor areas and gun positions in yesterday's assault, which followed a similar attack from the sea the night before.

BRITISH LABOR CHIEF ADDS TO AXIS WORRIES

LONDON, June 4—The British Trades Union Congress revealed today that its chief, George Gibson, recently made a secret visit to the continent and established semi-official communication with leading democratic elements in central European and Balkan countries.

It was assumed that the British government was aware of the talks that Gibson had with Romanian and Bulgarian politicians with whom he made contact.

The feat of Gibson, who visited Sweden as well as the Balkans, was shrewdly timed to fit in with the United Nations war of nerves designed to keep the Axis jittery regarding Allied intentions to invade the continent.

The speech last weekend of Miklos De Kallay, premier of Hungary, defying the right of Hitler to dominate small nations was attributed at least in part to the work of Gibson.

ROYAL AIR FORCE RAIDS have just passed the 100,000-ton mark in total weight of explosives dropped on the continent of Europe since the war began. More than a goodly number of the bombs have struck vital war industries in German cities, some of which are shown on this map. But, according to Air Marshal Sir Arthur T. Harris, chief of the R. A. F. Bomber Command, this tremendous record of destruction was only "chickenfeed." "The next 100,000 tons," he adds, "will be even bigger and better bombs, delivered more accurately and in a much shorter period of time." New raids bear him out. (International)

TWO TERM LIMIT GAINS SUPPORT

Democratic Senators Back Plan Affecting All Except Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, June 4—Ten Democratic senators today backed the Bailey resolution for a constitutional amendment limiting future presidents to two terms, as some others privately pledged support.

Phrased so that it would not apply to President Roosevelt, if nominated for a fourth term, the resolution gathered unexpected strength among Democratic senators.

Republicans also indicated their support, despite the exception. A canvass indicated that the resolution would be supported by 52 to 55 senators at this time. A two-thirds majority, of 64, would be needed to pass it and send it to the house.

Democratic supporters included Sen. Bailey, N. C., author of the resolution; Gerry, R. I.; George, Ga.; Smith, S. C.; Byrd, Va.; Tydings, Md.; Overton, La.; O'Daniel, Tex.; Chavez, N. M., and Walsh, Mass.

A senate judiciary subcommittee is scheduled to begin hearings soon on the proposal to submit the suggested amendment to state legislatures for ratification. A senate vote is not expected before Fall.

Republican Senate Leader McNary announced his support for the proposal.

"I think congress should pass the resolution and submit the matter to the people of the states for consideration," he said.

Despite the attitude of the strikers, there was no disorder at the gates.

Negro workers continued to march through the gates, punching clocks and obviously ignoring whites standing at the sideline. A few white workers entered the plant, but strikers said they were maintenance men.

COUNCIL READY FOR FINAL VOTE ON FAST TIME

Circleville council is expected to reach a final decision at a special meeting Friday night on the time schedule to be followed in the county seat during the rest of the Summer.

It was decided Wednesday evening that, barring something unforeseen, legislation would be passed putting the city on fast time at 3 a. m. Sunday, that time to continue until October 3.

Ross county commissioners have decided to place all courthouse offices on Eastern War Time to follow the policy adopted in Chillicothe during the week. The town clock has been moved ahead one hour to Eastern War Time.

UNIONISTS JEER CHIEFS; REFUSE TO END STRIKE

DETROIT, June 4—Another UAW-CIO attempt to end the "racial problem" strike at the Packard Motor Car Co. failed today as strikers roundly jeered union officials' pleas to return to work.

The strike, now in its second day, has halted production of airplane engines for the armed forces, and made approximately 25,000 workers idle.

Manning sound cars, union leaders toured the plant gates this morning, imploring strikers to return to work pending negotiations, but their voices were drowned in a chorus of boos and derogatory remarks.

Despite the attitude of the strikers, there was no disorder at the gates.

Negro workers continued to march through the gates, punching clocks and obviously ignoring whites standing at the sideline. A few white workers entered the plant, but strikers said they were maintenance men.

Two Southern Governors Order Draft Boards To Reclassify Strikers

NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 4—Gov. Prentice Cooper today vigorously defended his order to Tennessee draft boards to reclassify striking coal miners in the state and likewise upheld the action of the Robertson county draft board which halted all inductions.

"I indorse this action," the governor said.

The board members told the governor they would refuse to induct any more men into the army until the government got the national strike settled. They said:

"We cannot draft men into the army at pay of $50 a month when civilians in industry essential to the war effort are permitted to strike for higher wages, although already being paid $1 or more per hour."

Gov. Cooper said the strike situation was of such urgency that he had discussed it by long distance telephone with Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, who has possession of the mines for the government. He added:

"This matter has been of a great deal of concern to me, and I have tried to think it through. I feel it is just and fair that the idle miners no longer enjoy deferment. And the plan we have adopted is sound (Continued on Page Three)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Well the idea is to do away with all the filthy stockings and put the girls in good thick hose that will wear like iron.

Like most of our official policies these days this one has two explanations. The WPB says because the army needs nylon and rayon. The OWI adds that the government doesn't want women menacing national economy by buying stockings too often.

Ours does better than most governments. You get a maximum of two explanations with every policy.

Like in the gasoline shortage we got three: Transportation, rubber conservation, and shortage of supplies.

Anyway what we were going to say was that the passing of the sheer stocking will make great changes in our national lives.

Dietrich can retire from the screen for the duration, photographers might as well throw away their flash bulbs and cupid might as well get a war job in a war plant—it'll get him a "C" card anyway.

Thought for the day: There's nothing shocking in a thick black stocking.

BRIDGES FIGHTS ON TO REMAIN U. S. RESIDENT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4—First part of the transcript of a hearing at which Harry Bridges, west coast labor leader, was denied a writ of habeas corpus, was on file in the ninth circuit court of appeals today, as the longshoremen's chief resumed his fight against deportation.

Bridges was ordered deported to his native Australia by U. S. Attorney General Francis Biddle on grounds that Bridges was a Communist party member and that the party advocated violent overthrow of the government.

Court attaches said that the case, which is expected to go to the U. S. supreme court, will probably not be heard before November.

Speeders Face Gas Shortage

Ration Board To Lift Coupon Books Of All Convicted Autoists

Bad news for motorists who insist on violating safe-driving laws came from the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing office Friday following a meeting of the general ration board Thursday evening.

The board issued a statement which declared that motorists convicted of speeding, reckless operation or violation of any other highway safety law can expect to have their gasoline ration books lifted for periods of time which will correspond with the seriousness of their violations.

First offense against safe driving regulations will bring penalties that will be not too severe, the board pointed out, but a report of a second violation will mean suspension of all fuel ration books in the driver's possession. Neither will any law violator be eligible to receive rationed tires.

The board set an example last week when it lifted coupon books held by two local men. One lost his book for 15 days and the second for 10 days.

Seriousness of the tire situation was pointed out when the ration board said only persons who are in vital industry and who are hauling four or five persons to their jobs each day can qualify for Grade I tires. Others will have to be satisfied with Grade 3, which includes used or recapped tires.

"The number of tires assigned to our board each month is far below the number of applications received," George D. McDowell, rationing chairman, said.

Hour schedule at the rationing office will be revised beginning next Monday. The office force will work from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and from noon until 9 p. m. Thursday. The office will be open to the public from 9 to 4:30 p. m., Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and from 12 to 8 p. m. on Thursday.

The board discussed a successor as clerk to fill the vacancy left by resignation of Mrs. C. Dee Early. Mrs. Early leaves June 15. No decision was reached on the new clerk, a committee comprised of Mr. McDowell, Paul Johnson, J. D. Mason and Elmer Stebleton, chief clerk, being named to choose a new clerk.

CONGRESS PLANS ACTION

Passage Of Connally Bill Would Set Stage For Drastic Moves

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, June 4—Acting after President Roosevelt told striking coal miners that they must "work or fight," the house today passed an anti-strike bill making it a criminal offense to promote a strike in a government-seized plant.

The house approved the measure a short time after the President in a news conference warned draft deferred miners they would be inducted into the armed forces if they did not heed the ultimatum to return to work by Monday.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, June 4—President Roosevelt today warned draft-deferred striking miners that they would be inducted into the army if they did not heed his order to reopen the nation's coal mines on Monday.

The President, at his news conference, also made it clear that the "work or fight" rule would apply to strikers involved in any walkout in a war industry.

Mr. Roosevelt refused to say whether he would use troops to "break the walkout." He said that was an "iffy" question.

By International News Service

The men who mine the coal for this arsenal of democracy chose today to follow their union leader rather than the commander-in-chief of a nation at war.

With President Roosevelt reportedly ready to ask congress for anti-strike legislation to implement his back-to-work ultimatum, the nation's coal pile disappeared at an alarming rate. And with it went the first few scattered and vital war industries.

Although it still was a trifle too early to feel the full impact of the President's order, the great majority of reports from the far-flung coal fields said the miners would not return until John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers Union, gives the word.

In the Pittsburgh area, largest coal producing section in the country the miners told each other: "We'll stick by Lewis to the finish." In Illinois, where 10,000 progressive miners joined the Lewis union in its walkout, one union leader said: "I don't think the order meant a thing."

Alabama Hard Hit

Alabama mines, harder hit than most because the maintenance men also walked out, continued to fill with water and there was little in the way of a back-to-work movement. UMW headquarters in Denver saw little hope that many Colorado miners would return.

There were several, though widely-separated, bright spots, however. A ripple of rebellion against the union began in Washington, Pa., where fifteen miners signed a petition to return to the pits. The strike also was only partly effective in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Iowa.

BRIDGES FIGHTS ON TO REMAIN U. S. RESIDENT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4—First part of the transcript of a hearing at which Harry Bridges, west coast labor leader, was denied a writ of habeas corpus, was on file in the ninth circuit court of appeals today, as the longshoremen's chief resumed his fight against deportation.

Bridges was ordered deported to his native Australia by U. S. Attorney General Francis Biddle on grounds that Bridges was a Communist party member and that the party advocated violent overthrow of the government.

Court attaches said that the case, which is expected to go to the U. S. supreme court, will probably not be heard before November.

Speeders Face Gas Shortage

Ration Board To Lift Coupon Books Of All Convicted Autoists

Bad news for motorists who insist on violating safe-driving laws came from the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing office Friday following a meeting of the general ration board Thursday evening.

The board issued a statement which declared that motorists convicted of speeding, reckless operation or violation of any other highway safety law can expect to have their gasoline ration books lifted for periods of time which will correspond with the seriousness of their violations. First offense against safe driving regulations will bring penalties that will be not too severe, the board pointed out, but a report of a second violation will mean suspension of all fuel ration books in the driver's possession. Neither will any law violator be eligible to receive rationed tires.

The board set an example last week when it lifted coupon books held by two local men. One lost his book for 15 days and the second for 10 days.

Seriousness of the tire situation was pointed out when the ration board said only persons who are in vital industry and who are hauling four or five persons to their jobs each day can qualify for Grade I tires. Others will have to be satisfied with Grade 3, which includes used or recapped tires.

"The number of tires assigned to our board each month is far below the number of applications received," George D. McDowell, rationing chairman, said.

Hour schedule at the rationing office will be revised beginning next Monday. The office force will work from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and from noon until 9 p. m. Thursday. The office will be open to the public from 9 to 4:30 p. m., Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and from 12 to 8 p. m. on Thursday.

The board discussed a successor as clerk to fill the vacancy left by resignation of Mrs. C. Dee Early. Mrs. Early leaves June 15. No decision was reached on the new clerk, a committee comprised of Mr. McDowell, Paul Johnston, J. D. Mason and Elmer Stetebien, chief clerk, being named to choose a new clerk.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Well the idea is to do away with all the filmy stockings and put the girls in good thick hose that will wear like iron.

Like most of our official policies these days this one has two explanations. The WPB says because the army needs nylon and rayon. The OWI adds that the government doesn't want women menacing national economy by buying stockings too often.

Ours does better than most governments. You get a maximum of two explanations with every policy.

Like in the gasoline shortage we got three: Transportation, rubber conservation, and shortage of supplies.

Anyway what we were going to say was that the passing of the sheer stocking will make great changes in our national lives.

Thought for the day: There's nothing shocking in a thick black stocking.

CONGRESS PLANS ACTION

Passage Of Connally Bill Would Set Stage For Drastic Moves

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, June 4—Acting after President Roosevelt told striking coal miners that they must "work or fight", the house today passed an anti-strike bill making it a criminal offense to promote a strike in a government-seized plant.

The house approved the measure a short time after the President in a news conference warned draft deferred miners they would be inducted into the armed forces if they did not heed the ultimatum to return to work by Monday.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, June 4—President Roosevelt today warned draft-deferred striking miners that they would be inducted into the army if they did not heed his order to reopen the nation's coal mines on Monday.

The President, at his news conference, also made it clear that the "work or fight" rule would apply to strikers involved in any walkout in a war industry.

Mr. Roosevelt refused to say whether he would use troops to "break the walkout." He said that was an "iffy" question.

By International News Service

The men who mine the coal for this arsenal of democracy chose today to follow their union leader rather than the commander-in-chief of a nation at war.

With President Roosevelt reportedly ready to ask congress for anti-strike legislation to implement his back-to-work ultimatum the nation's coal pile disappeared at an alarming rate. And with it went the first few scattered and vital war industries.

Although it still was a trifle too early to feel the full impact of the President's order, the great majority of reports from the far-flung coal fields said the miners would not return until John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers Union, gives the word.

In the Pittsburgh area, largest coal producing section in the country the miners told each other: "We'll stick by Lewis to the finish." In Illinois, where 10,000 progressive miners joined the Lewis union in its walkout, one union leader said: "I don't think the order meant a thing."

Alabama Hard Hit

Alabama mines, harder hit than most because the maintenance men also walked out, continued to fill with water and there was little in the way of a back-to-work movement. UMW headquarters in Denver saw little hope that many Colorado miners would return.

There were several, though widely-separated, bright spots, however. A ripple of rebellion against the union began in Washington, Pa., where fifteen miners signed a petition to return to the pits. The strike also was only partly effective in Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Iowa.

MAN QUIZZED IN ATTACK SLAYING OF LITTLE GIRL

CLEVELAND, June 4—Police questioned one man early today in the attack-murder of five-year-old Mary Jane Brady, whose body was found at the rear of an east side apartment building.

Police found scraps of the girl's dress and blood stains in a nearby apartment where they surmised that the assault and murder had taken place.

HEALTH LEVEL OF GERMANS IN STEADY DECLINE

Sickness-Casualties Now Becoming Factor In War Production

BIRTH RATE DROPPING

Average Civilian Doctor In Reich Now Serving 5,000 Citizens

LONDON, June 4—Striking, detailed evidence was revealed in London today of the greatly lowered health standard in Germany and of the inadequacy of civilian medical services to cope with a mounting disease-toll throughout the country.

Records have been received in Britain of health conditions in all major German cities. A comparison of them to British standards confirms recent reports from Switzerland that sickness-casualties are becoming an important factor in weakening German production.

These records, official ones from towns and cities whose population totals a third of the entire German people, are being carefully studied by medical authorities here.

Heavy Death Toll
They disclose that in 1942 there were increases in infant mortality, in the suicide rate, and in the number of deaths from tuberculosis, diphtheria and scarlet fever. They reveal also a sharp decline in the birth rate.

"If the figures, applied to Great Britain we would have every reason to view the situation with great alarm," a high medical authority stated in reviewing the records.

Infant mortality in large German towns and cities rose by 17 percent in the last quarter of 1942—to 66 per 1,000 live births. In the same period British figures dropped from 59 to 49 per thousand.

Germany, in 1942, had nearly 5,500 more deaths from tuberculosis than in 1939. In Britain, 1942's figure dropped by 2,500 reaching an all-time low.

Working See Men

Mass radiology, now being applied to war-workers here, to eliminate infectious cases from contact in large factories or offices, is not in operation in Germany.

"Germany is using known tuberculosis cases in factories and offices to fill man-power deficiencies," a medical authority stated. The figures show that the average civilian doctor in Germany is serving five thousand people; here, the average practitioner handles about a thousand people.

Suicide rate in the areas covered by the statistics has risen from 6,387 in 1939 to 7,647 during 1942. In Britain the rate has dropped sharply since the beginning of hostilities.

STOLEN STAMPS REPLACED AT WINORR PLANT

Sufficient metal stamps to operate the system of can identification used by the plant has been obtained by the Winorr Canning Co., to replace a set of stamps stolen two weeks ago.

Plant managers said Friday that the company had been fortunate enough to find sufficient stamps to carry on the work. At the time the theft was reported it was feared stamps would not be available. The company feared difficulty in following its can identification system. The stamps stolen were worth $500.

COW OWNED BY MUSSER MAKES FINE RECORD

A two-year-old registered Guernsey cow, Ringgold Janet, owned by Robert D. Musser, Northridge road, recently completed a creditable advanced register record of 9,404.1 pounds of milk and 406 pounds of butter fat. This cow was milked 880 times while making this record. In addition to this record, the cow produced a healthy calf.

Ringgold Janet is a daughter of the outstanding Guernsey sire, Rasmelton Sunny Dictator.

The Ringgold farm cow's record was registered with the American Guernsey Cattle club.

CLOUD AND HILL PICKED TO AID WAR BOND SALE

Pickaway county War Savings Staff has expanded its organization, setting up committee chairmen in Ashville and Williamsport. Announcement of the expansion was made Friday by R. C. McAllister of the War Savings Staff.

Charles C. Cloud, Ashville insurance agent, will serve as director of War Savings activities in the Ashville district, while C. E. Hill, Williamsport, will head the War Savings committee in that district.

Appointment of committee chairmen in the two villages was requested by the War Savings Staff of Ohio, Mr. McAllister said.

WORK MANDATE STIRS ANGER OF UNION DIGGERS

UMW Leader Silent As Paralyzing Strike Enters Fourth Day

yet toward using troops to reopen the mines.

While the United Mine Workers president and strike leader, John L. Lewis, maintained silence as the walkout entered its fourth day, advisers of Mr. Roosevelt were urging him to ask congress to enact immediately the senate-approved Connally anti-strike bill.

The Connally draft is more moderate than the revised bill, now pending in the house.

Passage of the Connally bill would set the stage for drastic action by the President. The measure would confirm Mr. Roosevelt's power to seize war plants. After the President seized a plant in the name of the United States, the bill would make it unlawful for any worker to strike or any labor leader to call a strike. Penalties for violations of the law would include imprisonment up to one year and fines up to $5,000.

Some of the President's closest aides feared that his first move to end the walkout—his order to the strikers to go back to work—would be taken as a sign of indecision unless he followed through with another punch to force Lewis to call off the strike.

The President's directive was issued as Lewis was conducting a meeting of the 200-man policy committee of the union, which will have to approve any decision sending the 540,000 striking miners back to work.

Fails To Act
Lewis adjourned the policy committee conference without making any reply to Mr. Roosevelt's demand, although he knew of the chief executive's order at the time.

Miners, in telegrams from their union halls in the coal fields, swamped UMW offices in Washington with requests that Lewis continue the walkout until a new wage contract is signed, sealed and delivered.

Mr. Roosevelt, though, was insisting that the miners demands for a $2-a-day wage increase, which led to the strike Monday night, be settled by his War Labor Board.

As the President and Lewis maneuvered, some of labor's most staunch supporters in congress began denouncing the UMW leader and backing the President's stand that the strike against the government must be ended.

Sen. Robert Wagner (D-N. Y.), author of the Wagner labor law passed in the early pro-labor days of the New Deal, said that the walkout "should be called off at once." He charged that Lewis was following an "unpatriotic course."

To Follow Lewis
Despite the wailing Washington sentiment against the paralyzing walkout which will seriously cripple war production in the matter of a day or two, spokesmen for the miners said that the strikers in the coal fields would follow Lewis and not Mr. Roosevelt.

If their claims hold good and Lewis does not capitulate, this will mean again that setting of a Monday deadline might delay ultimate settlement of the controversy until the middle of the next week when vital war factories already will have shut down because of lack of coal.

The President's action climaxed a tense day of developments. Representatives of the miners and operators met twice yesterday and then adjourned their sessions until late today. Later, Lewis suddenly called the policy committee meeting without advance notice.

It broke up without any definite word when it would meet again. Many of its members went to a night ball game in Washington, then slept through the night. The mines stayed closed.

COAL, AMMONIA WATER STRIKE TERROR TO HUNS

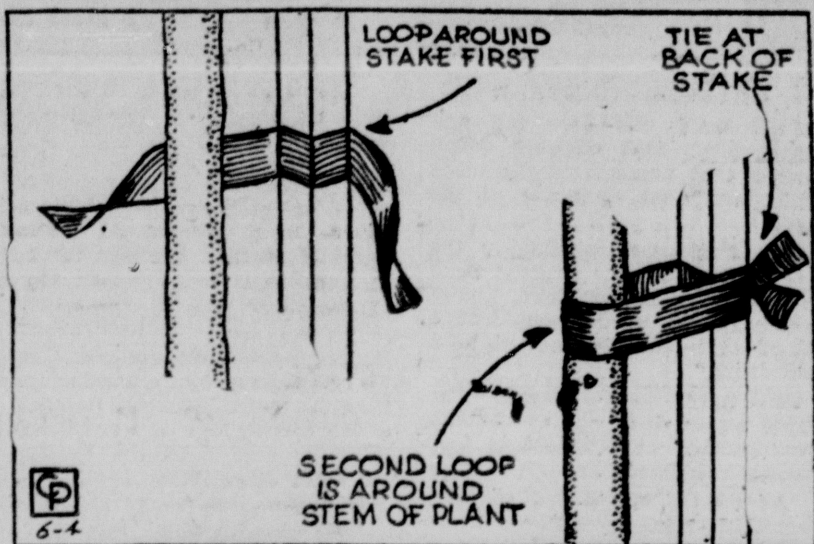

PERTH AMBOY, N. J., June 4—The potent four-ton "block buster" bombs that have brought terror to the heart of the German Reich are nothing more than coal, water and ammonia, plus some "magic with molecules."

This was revealed today as the army-navy "E" pennant was awarded to the Du Pont Co., which manufactures the explosive, with which the big bombs are filled.

OLD "SHOWCASE" BACK IN TRANSPORT SERVICE

POCANTICO HILLS, N. Y., June 4—An electric automobile built forty-one years ago, has been resurrected by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for short trips on the 3,000 acre Rockefeller estate, it was learned today. There are fifty miles of roads on the estate and the 1902 electric was pressed into service because of the gasoline restrictions.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

First Aid in the Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

CERTAIN vegetables in the Victory garden will do better and occupy less space if they are given first aid in the form of supports or braces.

Tomatoes, for example, if permitted to grow at will and sprawl all over their section of the garden must be planted not closer than three by four feet. On the other hand, if they are trained to grow upon stakes they can be planted two feet apart, and three feet between rows.

If you plan to use stakes as first aid for certain plants, place them before you plant the seed or set out the plants, since the roots of the plants may be badly injured if the stakes are driven into the ground after the plants have become established.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, when tying a plant to a stake make a loop of the tape or cord around the stake first. Then loop the tape or cord around the stem of the plant, as illustrated, and bring it back to the stake. This double method of tying furnishes a loop in which the plant can stand upright without being bruised or pinched. The knot should be tied against the stake, as illustrated, and not against the plant stem.

Do not bunch the foliage together when tying up a plant and always allow room for additional stem growth of the plant. Do not use wire or hard twine for tying purposes for fear of cutting the soft stem of the plant. Ramie, green twine or tape are the best materials to use.

HOWARD JONES STATE PATROL WINS $3,020 IN AIDS HUNT FOR GUARDIAN SUIT WILLIAM AMOS Decision in the claim of Dr. Howard Jones, guardian of Mrs. George H. Jones, West Mount street, against Mrs. James' estate for his services as her guardian covering a period from October 1, 1938, to December 31, 1942, was announced Friday by Acting Probate Judge Meeker Terwilliger. Judge Terwilliger, assigned to serve as probate judge in place of Judge Lemuel Weldon because C. A. Weldon, guardian of the Jones estate, is his father, declared that Mr. Jones has $3,020 due him for his services.

The action covers three partial accounts filed in probate court by Dr. Jones, one covering a period from October 1, 1938 to October 1, 1941, in which he claims $70 a month as compensation; the second from October 1, 1940 to June 1, 1941, in which he claims $70 a month, and the third from June 1, 1941 to December 31, 1942 in which he claims $60 a month. Totals allowed by the court are $1,680 for the first period, minus $370 which has already been paid; $630 for the second account and $1,080 for the third account.

Mr. Weldon, guardian of the estate, has been instructed to pay the $3,020 claim within 30 days.

VICTIM PULLED TO DEEP WATER, BROTHER SAYS

the scene must walk through the Smith farm lands.

Searchers arrived at the scene with two boats about an hour after the drowning was reported, but all who tried to locate the body reported the current so swift at that point that efforts to locate the girl with grappling hooks were futile. Among searchers were Deputy Vern Pontious, Patrolmen Elmer Merriam and Turney Ross, Harry Timmons, Clarence Francis, Charles Mumaw, Clarence Allison, William (Pug) Fowler, Jr., a man named Ramsey and several others. All the men remained at the river until about 7:30 Thursday evening at which time they gave up their efforts, only to resume them again Friday.

Swift Current
It is general belief that the current is so swift that the body may finally be located some distance from the scene of the drowning.

The little girl was wearing her street clothes. Sheriff Charles Radcliff, Prosecutor George Gerhardt and Police Chief McCrady offered a reward of $10 Friday to the person who finds the body.

The Scioto river is about two feet higher than normal and searching efforts have been impaired by the swiftness of the water in the area in which the girl went under.

Boats used in the search are owned by Jay L. Clark and Turney Ross. Clarence Francis and Harry Timmons were thrown into the water when the Clark boat was tipped when the searchers tried to avoid a tree snag along the bank. Neither suffered injury.

FREIGHT TRAIN SEVERS LEGS OF LANCASTER MAN

A Pennsylvania railroad freight train pulling into Lancaster from Circleville fatally injured Harold W. Floyd, 39, of 815 McKinley avenue, Lancaster. Floyd lost both his legs under the freight train. He died Thursday in Lancaster city hospital.

Lancaster police said Floyd was lying in the grass on the north side of the track, his legs over the rails when the freight pulling into Lancaster struck him. He was employed as a machinist for the Anchor-Hocking Glass Corporation. His death is the third on railroad tracks in Lancaster this year.

Surviving Mr. Floyd are his widow, a son, two sisters, two brothers and his father. The body will be taken to Clarksburg, W. Va., for funeral services.

and sensible. It is the only thing we could do. We Tennesseans stand together on this."

It is estimated that between 8,000 and 9,000 Tennessee miners are on strike.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 4—Alabama lined up today with Tennessee in the demand that striking coal miners "work or fight."

Gov. Chauncey Sparks of Alabama issued his work or fight order in the form of instructions for the reclassification of all workers who by 3 p. m. today are not at the jobs for which they were given deferment.

The governor made his order more drastic by instructing the state Selective Service director, Lieut. Col. James T. Johnson, that once a man has been deprived of his occupational deferment because of quitting his job, it shall not be restored to him.

PARATROOPER HELD PENDING INVESTIGATION

Private Paul Ely, 22, of 132 Brehl street, Columbus, is being held in Circleville jail pending investigation into his status following his arrest at 9:10 a. m. Friday in his room at the American Hotel. Ely was registered at the hotel under the name of Paul Webb.

Harvey Kirby of Circleville told police that he intends to bring charges against the soldier, who is reported to be in training in the parachute troops at Fort Benning, Ga. Kirby said Ely had taken a $50 wrist watch, which his daughter had recently bought, to Columbus and pawned it for $20.

Police were forced to separate the two men when Ely was taken to police headquarters.

A pass made out by a Fort Benning captain permitting the Columbus soldier to go on a furlough as far as Columbus, Ga., was found in his pocket. The pass was dated March 30. Police planned to contact Fort Benning to learn whether the man is absent without leave.

long indicated the possibility of a revolution in Argentina, the only Latin American nation still retaining diplomatic relations with the Axis Nations cause, has broken relations with the Axis.

According to this information, unrest has been rife not only at the Campo De Mayo base, 18 miles from Buenos Aires, but also at the Rio Santiago naval base, 35 miles from the capital.

Unusual precautions were taken in recent months at both these military establishments.

Actual background of the dissension is somewhat obscure. There is a Fascist minority in Argentina which is dissatisfied with the Castillo government, while the pro-United Nations group, said to comprise 99 percent of the population, is even more in opposition to his regime for its failure to sever relations with the Axis, expel known Nazi agents from the country, and possibly even declare war against Germany and Italy.

Disorders at Campo De Mayo resulting in the killing of three sentries were reported last Fall, but news of the incident was suppressed in the Argentine press.

FRANCIS TEMPLE IN NORTH AFRICA ARMY HOSPITAL

Official word that his son, Private Francis Temple, is in an allied hospital in North Africa after being wounded in action was received Friday by William Temple, Watt street, from the War department. Mr. Temple had previously received word from the war office that his son was missing.

Later a letter was received by a relative in Circleville stating that Temple had been injured and was hospitalized. The letter was written after a date on which the War department reported he had been missing.

OHIO JURORS SCARCE

NEW PHILADELPHIA.—A precedent in the annals of wartime law practice may be established in Tuscarawas County, Ohio, where Common Pleas Court cases will be tried by a jury of six persons, if plans of the County Bar Association are put into effect. The new "pint size" jury was suggested by Judge E. E. Lindsay, who pointed out the court was experiencing great difficulty in obtaining 12 jurors for the usual jury panel.

SAYS HITLER MAY FLEE

SIoux CITY, Ia.—The flight of Rudolf Hess to Scotland was really an attempted escape to Ireland, Eric Underwood, English publicist, writer and traveler, declared in Sioux City recently. Ireland, too, is the one place to which Hitler may escape to safety, he added. Underwood formerly was director of British Civil Service. At one time he served as tutor to King Leopold of the Belgians. He is the editor and author of standard works on painting and sculpture and on the Russian language and literature.

OPA MILK PRICE CUT STIRS IRE OF LaGUARDIA

NEW YORK, June 4—Although the Office of Price Administration has ordered a one-half cent a quart reduction in milk prices, it looked today as if New Yorkers would be lucky to get milk at any price.

The OPA order was based on a saving it said milk dealers would affect as the result of reduced delivery schedules. But meantime union drivers refuse to carry double loads required under the Office of Defense Transportation's skip-a-day plan. Milk dealers, therefore, said far from making a saving they were taking a loss because of decreased sales.

When informed of the milk cut, Mayor F. H. La Guardia termed it "incorrect, inequitable, unsound, unjust, dumb and silly." Union officials said milk drivers would expect to receive their full weeks pay Saturday, although they have only worked half a week. Failure to be paid in full would be regarded as a violation of the dealers-drivers contract, officials said.

DAVIES HANDS STALIN REPLY TO ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, June 4—President Roosevelt today was in receipt of a reply from Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin to the secret message sent him last month.

Joseph E. Davies, the President's special envoy to Moscow, brought Stalin's reply to the White House after a swift flight from Russia that carried him over the northern regions of the earth. The nature of Stalin's reply as well as Mr. Roosevelt's secret message remained a secret although it was reported possible that the chief executive might make some comment on the matter at his news conference late today.

Davies' return to Washington revived speculation in diplomatic circles that his second mission to Moscow may have been connected with the known desire of President Roosevelt to have a conference with Stalin in the near future.

The fact that Davies was given such a cordial reception by the Soviets in Moscow led to the belief that the Russian dictator might be willing to confer with Mr. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill sometime this Summer.

INSECT DIVE BOMBERS MAKE EARLY APPEARANCE

Dive-bombers, in the form of enormous mosquitoes, have hit the Circleville community earlier this year than in the last several years. Many persons have reported big mosquitoes making life miserable for them when they work in their Victory gardens or sit on their porches at night. Most of these persons have big weeds to prove they were attacked.

Manufacturers of baby carriages in the United States are now limited to two or three models.

Wellington bombers carried out the new assault on Naples, where they blasted port buildings and war industries. None of the bombers was lost.

Nazi fighter planes raided a town on the southeast coast of England this forenoon in a hit-run raid which inflicted casualties on civilians. Besides dropping bombs, the Nazis machine-gunned the town. The raiders hit a hotel, library, butcher shop, church and numerous houses. British fighter planes shot down one of the raiders and anti-aircraft gunners hit others.

French In Accord

The newly-formed French committee of liberation, set up yesterday as a de facto government with jurisdiction over all French empire territories not dominated by the Axis, met again today as Washington considered granting it diplomatic recognition.

The committee, headed jointly by Gen. Charles De Gaulle and Gen. Henri Honore Giraud, was chief of all French forces opposing the Axis. Gen. Giraud, who has been chief of French forces in North Africa since before the successful Tunisian campaign, was expected to be named to the new post.

Furious aerial warfare continued today over the Kuban valley of the West Caucasus, at the southern end of the long Russian front. There, Moscow said, 23 more Nazi planes were downed. The air battles were part of the bitter contest for control of the Black Sea naval base at Novorossisk. The Russian communists this noon gave no details of the ground action, again reporting only that fighting still was in progress.

Chiang Presses Ahead

In China, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's victorious troops were reported closing in on the main central China Japanese base at Ichang. Chinese troops were said to have gained positions on the west bank of the Yangtze river opposite Ichang. Reports also told of Jap troops being cut off and annihilated in several other sectors.

In the Southwest Pacific, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's airmen attacked Japanese outposts at Babe in Dutch New Guinea and at Lautem on the island of Timor despite bad weather which limited operations. Fighter-plane resistance was met at both places, but all the Allied bombers returned safely after shooting down one intercepting plane during each raid.

OPEN LETTERS

TO THE WOMEN

LADIES: Every man in Circleville and Pickaway county who failed to show up to donate a pint of his blood when the mobile unit was here the other day should bow to you when he meets you on the street. The strong sex is definitely the weaker sex in this community right now, because so many more women volunteered to make blood donations than men that it becomes a little bit pathetic. I cannot quite imagine a big, brave man being afraid to donate a pint of his blood to the cause for which it is going. But then maybe the men are not afraid. Maybe they just cannot realize the importance of the plasma made from the blood you and you and you have donated. I wonder how many men who have sons in service would go to the blood bank if they thought for a minute that their own blood might some day make the plasma that would save that son's life. I hope that so many men volunteer to give blood the next time the mobile unit visits Circleville that there will be no need to call on the women. But, I would almost wager that the women outnumber the men again. They have their sons and the sons of their neighbors close to their hearts.

CIRCUITEER.

TO RATION BOARD

OPA UNIT: You showed a couple of Circleville motorists the other day that fast driving is not to be tolerated so far as OPA is concerned. You have a lot of power when it comes to lifting supplemental ration books for gasoline purchases, and I am glad to see you exercise some of it. The only trouble with this whole rationing program is that so many rulings are supposed to have teeth in them, but these teeth have not been shown at any time until now. Penalties you invoked against both drivers who forfeited their supplemental books when they were convicted of speeding were not severe, but there is nothing to indicate that the next coupon book suspension will not be for longer periods of time. Motorists should know by now that they must abide by the law, or else give up their rights.

CIRCUITEER.

TO THE REV. ROBERT T. KELSEY

PASTOR: I intend to be a little bit different today. During the last week, in fact since it became generally known that you were leaving Circleville the week of June 13, you have probably heard scores of persons lament the fact that you are leaving Circleville. I, too, am sorry to see you go, but I am mighty happy to know that you are receiving such an excellent opportunity in a city twice as large as Circleville. Too many of us are sorry to see someone get ahead in this old world, we like to see others stay in the rut in which we are moving day after day. But I am very, very happy to know that a young pastor who came to Circleville with only

Polish Government-in-Exile War's "Refugee Press" Also Not Popular With Own Folk Headache to Host Countries

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

TO COUNTRIES that have exiles on their hands, to be sheltered and kept alive, such guests can be first-class nuisances. The other day I had occasion to refer to the Polish government-in-exile—in London at present. An exiled government is supposed to be made up of representatives of their home folk, in lands overrun by Axis invaders—folk who subscribe wholeheartedly to their exiles' spokesmanship and will welcome them back as soon as the bigger democracies have won the war and set the liberty-loving little peewees free. In part this reasoning doubtless is correct. Yet it is not altogether so. Apparently it is not true in Poland's case. The masses of the Poles seemingly are pretty pro-Rus- way. The Polish common element was pretty Communist, but the aristocracy was pro-Junker, a la Germany. The Junker element was the one that beat it out, into exile, early in the war. It is a specimen among the exiled governments that we hear so much about. Being sympathetically pro-Nazi, why did it head in toward democratic shelter? Well, it did so, unquestionably, because it preferred taking chances with Nazism than with Communism or even democracy. Its locally popular democratic crowd probably put a firecracker under it too. The changes are that it was not physically safe for its a little experience, and who has made his congregation one of the finest of the city, has been invited to occupy the pulpit of a much larger church. Circleville Presbyterian church will miss you; Circleville community folk, whether they are members of your church or whether they belong elsewhere, or nowhere at all, will miss your personality and your ability as a Christian and as a man. Many think that a minister of the gospel should be above enjoying the every day things of life; that he should not be interested in athletics; should never crack a smile. But, thank goodness, you fill all the requirements placed on you as a minister, and you are in addition a swell fellow. Your new charge in Niles will certainly be only a stepping stone to a higher position, one which I feel certain you will attain.

CIRCUITEER.

TO EVERY ONE

ALL: Next week, from June 8 through June 14 Flag Week is being observed nationally, and Circleville has been asked to cooperate. In a message issued this week Mayor Ben H. Gordon asked all storekeepers to put their American flags in front of their places of business on Monday and to keep them there during the entire week. Private citizens are asked also to display the Stars and Stripes at their homes. But that is not all. A national quota has been established for the week in the interest of War Bonds and Stamps. Circleville and Pickaway county are being asked to do their part. All persons are to make as many purchases as they possibly can to help the nation reach its goal. Collections will be taken up in various public gathering places, including churches and theatres, with every one being asked to chip in. Every one knows how important War Bond and Stamp purchases are to our war effort. Every boy in service writes home to ask of parents to "keep on buying Bonds". These fellows are having part of their pay deducted each month for the War Bond cause. How about all of us doing some buying, too?

CIRCUITEER.

TO SCHOOL PUPILS

BOYS, GIRLS: You youngsters deserve praise for the role you played during the school year in the interest of War Bonds and Stamps. When you started your campaign in the Fall you didn't know how far you would be able to go so far as bond purchases are concerned, but you have made an excellent showing, one that makes all of us happy. The total of $6,115 was reached in the last week of the campaign, and this is sufficient to finance purchase of a sound detector and a jeep. Not many schools were able to match this amount. You did a swell job, and so did your teachers in directing the campaign. More power to you next year.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MR. WEATHERMAN

SIR: Today you are a gentleman. Last week you were a bum, and maybe you will return to that calling next week. But today you are a gentleman. You have given us almost a week of sunshine, and hot sunshine, too, the kind that makes crops develop to their finest quality. For a long while it looked like you didn't care whether God's children in all parts of the world had enough to eat next Winter, and maybe they will not have unless you continue to behave yourself. Corn planting has been delayed to such an extent that an early frost might do great damage. Peas are coming along well, and harvest is about to start. Soybeans are growing, and corn that is in the ground is growing nicely. If you'll stay on our side for a while, you'll be taking a hard slap at Corporal Hitler and Benito the Bust and the land of the Nip. How about it, Mister?

Eyes Not Cured By Exercises

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"THE ART of seeing" is the title of a book by Mr. Aldous Huxley, published a few months ago. I have enjoyed Mr. Huxley's other books and thought this might be a

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

characteristically sensitive account of how he learned to find hidden meanings and angles in the common sights of the world around us.

What I actually found was a shock and a disillusionment. Mr. Huxley had the misfortune to suffer in his youth from a serious eye affliction which forced him to leave Eton college and from which he was almost blind for three or four years. He made his way through Oxford by reading with a magnifying glass. He states that he had keratitis punctata, a set of spotted opacities on the cornea. This left him with one eye just capable of light perception and the other with five per cent of normal vision.

That he achieved such a degree of literary success as he did with such a handicap is, of course, remarkable and creditable to his will power and inner vision, for inner vision he has plenty.

A few years ago he fell in with the teachings of William H. Bates, a self-appointed healer whose German followers have not hesitated to compare him with Christ, who claimed to cure glaucoma, nearsightedness, far-sightedness, astigmatism, old-age eyes, which require reading glasses, cough, hay fever, facial neuralgia, cataract, syphilis of the eye, and central blindness.

Bates' method depends on exercises of two of the six muscles by which we can, by voluntary control, move the eyeballs to the right and left and up and down, and obliquely. They are attached to the outside of the eyeball, not to the lens, which accommodates our vision to far objects or near objects. Nor do they change the shape of the cornea, which has to do with astigmatism, nor the length of the eyeball, which has to do with near- and far-sightedness. Besides these exercises Bates had a number of other manoeuvres.

Now it is understandable how a man with Huxley's disabilities must have suffered great distress and repeated fatigue in the use of his eyes. Some of Bates' treatments would naturally help to rest such eyes; for instance, "palm- ing," which consists simply in covering the eyes with the palms for a while and "shifting" which is moving the focus from one thing to another. These are methods of mental, ocular and bodily relaxation.

Unscientific and Harmful

But to suggest that they or any of the other exercises relieve poor vision and eyestrain due to poor curvature of the cornea and lens is not only absurd but wicked, because people who could be instantly relieved by glasses are galled into undergoing a long set of exercises training which not only does not improve their vision, but gives them serious eyestrain.

That a man, the grandson of T. H. Huxley, one of the most scientific writers of the last generation, should sponsor such nonsense is indeed a discouraging sign for our civilization.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

THE DAY had been hot and tiring, filled with nagging emergencies that arose from the mass hiring and final equipping of the plant.

Mrs. Parkinson, waiting in the cool patio, took one look at Jean and cried, "You poor dear. You're exhausted. Go up and pop into a tub of water and I'll send you up a cold drink."

Gratefully Jean obeyed. The warm water drew out the aching weariness of her limbs and iced limeade refreshed her.

"As usual," she called to Mrs. Parkinson, when the latter came in to wait for her on the chaise longue in her bedroom, "your recipe for reviving did the job."

"It's a shame you have to work so hard," Mrs. Parkinson said.

"Nonsense! It's wonderful we're getting so much done!"

"So things are going nicely at the plant."

A warning bell rang in Jean's brain as she opened her mouth to confide their progress. She said instead, "I don't know really about the thing as a whole, but Steve and I seem to be getting out lots of work." She had tried not to be too discouraging. She should be drawing out the other woman's questions. But she was intensely relieved that Mrs. Parkinson's curiosity seemed to be satisfied.

When Jean came into the bedroom, wrapped in her white Turkish robe, her hostess held up some sketches. "I've been to see Senora Ventosa about our costumes for the fiesta," she said. "She's still determined to make them as she pleases, but she did grudgingly draw some rough ideas of them for us."

Jean studied the wide-skirted, peasant-waisted sketches with interest. "I've always loved Spanish costumes," she said. "These look positively rapturous."

"I do think they'll be lovely," Mrs. Parkinson agreed. "She promises they will be authentic as well as becoming. And she's even giving you a choice between ribbons and embroidered braids or both." She laid samples of brilliant Mexican embroidery beside bits of colored ribbon. Gaily they discussed them, made their choices.

"I'll take them to her first thing tomorrow," Mrs. Parkinson promised as she rose to leave. "Now for a cool tub myself. See you at dinner, dear."

Jean dressed leisurely in a cool-flowered organdy, and wandered down to the patio. And as she felt the first cool evening breeze with the tang of the ocean in it, she remembered again her strange adventure of the previous night, and the unknown boat. She had not told Steve. In the rush of factual office routine, an unknown, even unlawfully-run boat seemed an inconsequential matter. Perhaps it had been the Coast Guard cutter, anyway, although she was sure once again that it had a different sound.

Through the gate she saw Curley's swaggering figure passing the swimming pool. On sudden impulse, she ran to join him. She could ask him if he ever used the Parkinsons' boat, anyway.

"What's your hurry?" she said, catching up with him.

Even before he turned, she could see for herself. Ahead of him, between the twin rows of eucalyptus trees that made a sheltered walk to the quaint rancho chapel, Rosita was running!

"Oh, I beg your pardon," Jean turned to go back to the house. But Curley, after one quizzical instant of hesitation, swung her around again.

"Come on. Go to church with me."

She was caught off guard at the wording of his invitation and found herself walking beside him for want of an excuse, as they moved on down the tree-shaded lane, rosehued in the sunset.

They went slowly into the darkness of the tiny chapel. Curley made no move to go farther than just inside the door, and he stood there watching the distant slender figure of Rosita, kneeling before three lighted candles at the dim altar, with such absorption he seemed entirely to forget Jean's presence.

Only when Rosita moved up the aisle to pass them did Curley's natural spirits return. He took one of Jean's arms and one of Rosita's and led them out of the chapel and back along the path.

Jean's irritation was mixed with amusement at the glow of anger in Rosita's eyes. Quite openly they were demanding to know why Curley had brought this girl along with him. Her anger was almost possessive tonight. Sudden suspicion pushed the amusement from Jean's thoughts. Maybe Curley had had a date with Rosita at the chapel. It would be like the heartless flirt to allow another girl to come with him just to worry Rosita. Perhaps he's often met her down here—secret little tete-a-tetes in which he made up for the casual teasing attitude he took toward her in public.

Curley was teasing her now—telling her the costume she'd brought him to wear while dancing the charro dance with her at the fiesta was too small—and very funny looking, besides.

"Funny looking!" Her jealous resentment blazed into belligerence as she informed him in strident gasps that that costume had been worn before by her mother's partner to dance before Pancho Villa!

"Not Pancho—THE Pancho!" Curley yelled. "Well, how was I to know it was with such an honor the suit reeked?" His bland gaze was on Jean as that of a humorous conspirator, but Jean refused to enter into the spirit of the fun. She meant to see that he didn't drag her along again on a planned two some!

Late that night, when everyone had gone to his room, Jean slipped into dark slacks, sweater and topcoat and made her way through the darkened house and out along the cliff road to the sea. She had decided to ask nothing of anyone, but to do that investigating herself.

She was thankful the night was dark. She felt safely hidden in it. But she had to proceed carefully in the treacherously rutted path. She found the turn-off that led down the hill, and crept slowly along it till she saw the dark outline of the rancho boathouse against the lighter gray of the ocean. She settled down on a rock well screened by bushes from the path, pleased with her plan. She would know soon if the mysterious night boat was the Parkinsons'.

She sat there almost an hour. The night grew slowly colder. The mist crept in, wet and penetrating. Her earlier enthusiasm waned as weariness and discomfort grew. She was almost ready to turn back when she heard the voices. So distant at first, they sounded like a part of the ocean's murmur, then rapidly strengthened. She crouched lower, back among the bushes. Her heart began to beat with heavy, painful throbs. Fear and excitement held her tense as she strained to see the two dim figures who were making their way down the hillside.

They came within three feet of her, talking, laughing. Passed her and entered the boathouse.

She stood up to see—a dim boat roared out to sea—a dim black shadow scudding into the mists that hung over the gray water. She felt numb and there was a faint, sick ringing in her head, for the two who were taking the small, powerful speedboat out on its mysterious, illicit mission, were Rosita and Curley.

OPEN LETTERS

TO THE WOMEN

LADIES: Every man in Circleville and Pickaway county who failed to show up to donate a pint of his blood when the mobile unit was here the other day should bow to you when he meets you on the street. The strong sex is definitely the weaker sex in this community right now, because so many more women volunteered to make blood donations than men that it becomes a little bit pathetic. I cannot quite imagine a big, brave man being afraid to donate a pint of his blood to the cause for which it is going. But then maybe the men are not afraid. Maybe they just cannot realize the importance of the plasma made from the blood you and you and you have donated. I wonder how many men who have sons in service would go to the blood bank if they thought for a minute that their own blood might some day make the plasma that would save that son's life. I hope that so many men volunteer to give blood the next time the mobile unit visits Circleville that there will be no need to call on the women. But, I would almost wager that the women outnumber the men again. They have their sons and the sons of their neighbors close to their hearts.

CIRCUITEER.

TO RATION BOARD

OPA UNIT: You showed a couple of Circleville motorists the other day that fast driving is not to be tolerated so far as OPA is concerned. You have a lot of power when it comes to lifting supplemental ration books for gasoline purchases, and I am glad to see you exercise some of it. The only trouble with this whole rationing program is that so many rulings are supposed to have teeth in them, but these teeth have not been shown at any time until now. Penalties you invoked against both drivers who forfeited their supplemental books when they were convicted of speeding were not severe, but there is nothing to indicate that the next coupon book suspension will not be for longer periods of time. Motorists should know by now that they must abide by the law, or else give up their rights.

CIRCUITEER.

TO THE REV. ROBERT T. KELSEY

PASTOR: I intend to be a little bit different today. During the last week, in fact since it became generally known that you were leaving Circleville the week of June 13, you have probably heard scores of persons lament the fact that you are leaving Circleville. I, too, am sorry to see you go, but I am mighty happy to know that you are receiving such an excellent opportunity in a city twice as large as Circleville. Too many of us are sorry to see someone get ahead in this old world, we like to see others stay in the rut in which we are moving day after day. But I am very, very happy to know that a young pastor who came to Circleville with only a little experience, and who has made his congregation one of the finest of the city, has been invited to occupy the pulpit of a much larger church. Circleville Presbyterian church will miss you; Circleville community folk, whether they are members of your church or whether they belong elsewhere, or nowhere at all, will miss your personality and your ability as a Christian and as a man. Many think that a minister of the gospel should be above enjoying the every day things of life; that he should not be interested in athletics; should never crack a smile. But, thank goodness, you fill all the requirements placed on you as a minister, and you are in addition a swell fellow. Your new charge in Niles will certainly be only a stepping stone to a higher position, one which I feel certain you will attain.

CIRCUITEER.

TO EVERY ONE

ALL: Next week, from June 8 through June 14 Flag Week is being observed nationally, and Circleville has been asked to cooperate. In a message issued this week Mayor Ben H. Gordon asked all storekeepers to put their American flags in front of their places of business on Monday and to keep them there during the entire week. Private citizens are asked also to display the Stars and Stripes at their homes. But that is not all. A national quota has been established for the week in the interest of War Bonds and Stamps. Circleville and Pickaway county are being asked to do their part. All persons are to make as many purchases as they possibly can to help the nation reach its goal. Collections will be taken up in various public gathering places, including churches and theatres, with every one being asked to chip in. Every one knows how important War Bond and Stamp purchases are to our war effort. Every boy in service writes home to ask of parents to "keep on buying Bonds". These fellows are having part of their pay deducted each month for the War Bond cause. How about all of us doing some buying, too?

CIRCUITEER.

TO SCHOOL PUPILS

BOYS, GIRLS: You youngsters deserve praise for the role you played during the school year in the interest of War Bonds and Stamps. When you started your campaign in the Fall you didn't know how far you would be able to go so far as bond purchases are concerned, but you have made an excellent showing, one that makes all of us happy. The total of $6,115 was reached in the last week of the campaign, and this is sufficient to finance purchase of a sound detector and a jeep. Not many schools were able to match this amount. You did a swell job, and so did your teachers in directing the campaign. More power to you next year.

CIRCUITEER.

TO MR. WEATHERMAN

SIR: Today you are a gentleman. Last week you were a bum, and maybe you will return to that calling next week. But today you are a gentleman. You have given us almost a week of sunshine, and hot sunshine, too, the kind that makes crops develop to their finest quality. For a long while it looked like you didn't care whether God's children in all parts of the world had enough to eat next Winter, and maybe they will not have unless you continue to behave yourself. Corn planting has been delayed to such an extent that an early frost might do great damage. Peas are coming along well, and harvest is about to start. Soybeans are growing, and corn that is in the ground is growing nicely. If you'll stay on our side for a while, you'll be taking a hard slap at Corporal Hitler and Benito the Bust and the land of the Nip. How about it, Mister?

Polish Government-in-Exile War's "Refugee Press" Also
Not Popular With Own Folk Headache to Host Countries

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

TO COUNTRIES that have exiles on their hands, to be sheltered and kept alive, such guests can be first-class nuisances. The other day I had occasion to refer to the Polish government-in-exile—in London at present. An exiled government is supposed to be made up of representatives of their home folk, in lands overrun by Axis invaders—folk who subscribe wholeheartedly to their exiles' spokesmanship and will welcome them back as soon as the bigger democracies have won the war and set the liberty-loving little peewees free. In part this reasoning doubtless is correct. Yet it is not altogether so. Apparently it is not true in Poland's case. The masses of the Poles seemingly are pretty pro-Russian and anti-Nazi, but their pre-war leaders were just the other way. The Polish common element was pretty Communist, but the aristocracy was pro-Junker, a la Germany. The Junker element was the one that beat it out, into exile, early in the war. It is a specimen among the exiled governments that we hear so much about. Being sympathetically pro-Nazi, why did it head in toward democratic shelter? Well, it did so, unquestionably, because it preferred taking chances with Nazism than with Communism or even democracy. Its locally popular democratic crowd probably put a freerunner under it, too. The chances are that it was not physically safe for its leaders to stick on the job in their own various neighborhoods. Hence the government-in-exile—consisting of reactionary Poles. The democracies welcomed them, believing them to be genuine exiles, whereas they were just Quislings, watching for an opportunity to stir up discord between their own aggregation and the totalitarians—for their own ultimate benefit. The invaded countries are not all crooked basically, but the situation is convenient for a certain class of exiles to take advantage of. The difficulty is that these exiles are exceedingly difficult to identify. An on-the-spot government is really a government. An exiled government is darned vague. It has no headquarters to refer anything to. The exiles profess to speak for somebody, but for WHOM? How far are they trustworthy? And a new complication has arisen of late. The "refugee press" is raising hades democratically, according to Director of Information Brendon Bracken of Britain. Bracken's holler relates to the "exile press." It scatters its propaganda from democratic sources, he alleges. His essential complaint is that the propaganda is not so much addressed to disunionism among the conflicting powers as to disunity among the Allies. Director Bracken had this subject before the house of commons recently. His version is that now is the time to muzzle Communism. Bracken's proposition is legitimate. But—What about the Russian program? And—Gosh!—What about the Japs? I am not so sure that Japan cannot be civilized. Varying governments do not conflict. There is no telling which is which. Let's get them together.

Eyes Not Cured By Exercises

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"THE ART of seeing" is the title of a book by Mr. Aldous Huxley, published a few months ago. I have enjoyed Mr. Huxley's other books and thought this might be a

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

characteristically sensitive account of how he learned to find hidden meanings and angles in the common sights of the world around us.

What I actually found was a shock and a disillusionment. Mr. Huxley had the misfortune to suffer in his youth from a serious eye affection which forced him to leave Eton college and from which he was almost blind for three or four years. He made his way through Oxford by reading with a magnifying glass. He states that he had keratitis punctata, a set of spotted opacities on the cornea. This left him with one eye just capable of light perception and the other with five per cent of normal vision.

That he achieved such a degree of literary success as he did with such a handicap is, of course, remarkable and creditable to his will power and inner vision, for inner vision he has plenty.

A few years ago he fell in with the teachings of William H. Bates, a self-appointed healer whose German followers have not hesitated to compare him with Christ, who claimed to cure glaucoma, near-sightedness, far-sightedness, astigmatism, old-age eyes, which require reading glasses, cough, hay fever, facial neuralgia, cataract, syphilis of the eye, and central blindness.

Bates' method depends on exercises of two of the six muscles by which we can, by voluntary control, move the eyeballs to the right and left and up and down, and obliquely. They are attached to the outside of the eyeball, not to the lens, which accommodates our vision to far objects or near objects. Nor do they change the shape of the cornea, which has to do with astigmatism, nor the length of the eyeball, which has to do with near- and far-sightedness. Besides these exercises Bates had a number of other manoeuvres.

Now it is understandable how a man with Huxley's disabilities must have suffered great distress and repeated fatigue in the use of his eyes. Some of Bates' treatments would naturally help to rest such eyes; for instance, "palm- ing," which consists simply in covering the eyes with the palms for a while and "shifting," which is moving the focus from one thing to another. These are methods of mental, ocular and bodily relaxation.

Unscientific and Harmful

But to suggest that they or any of the other exercises relieve poor vision and eyestrain due to poor curvature of the cornea and lens is not only absurd but wicked, because people who could be instantly relieved by glasses are gulled into undergoing a long set of exercise training which not only does not improve their vision, but gives them serious eyestrain.

That a man, the grandson of T. H. Huxley, one of the most scientific writers of the last generation, should sponsor such nonsense is indeed a discouraging sign for our civilization.

CHAPTER NINETEEN

THE DAY had been hot and astringent, filled with nagging emergencies that arose from the mass hiring and final equipping of the plant.

Mrs. Parkinson, waiting in the cool patio, took one look at Jean and cried, "You poor dear. You're exhausted. Go up and pop into a tub of water and I'll send you up a cold drink."

Gratefully Jean obeyed. The warm water drew out the aching weariness of her limbs and iced limeade refreshed her.

"As usual," she called to Mrs. Parkinson, when the latter came in to wait for her on the chaise longue in her bedroom, "your recipe for reviving did the job."

"It's a shame you have to work so hard," Mrs. Parkinson said. "Nonsense! It's wonderful we're getting so much done!"

"So things are going nicely at the plant."

A warning bell rang in Jean's brain as she opened her mouth to confide their progress. She said instead, "I don't know really about the thing as a whole, but Steve and I seem to be getting out lots of work." She had tried not to be too discouraging. She should be drawing out the other woman's questions. But she was intensely relieved that Mrs. Parkinson's curiosity seemed to be satisfied.

When Jean came into the bedroom, wrapped in her white Turkish robe, her hostess held up some sketches. "I've been to see Senora Ventosa about our costumes for the festa," she said. "She's still determined to make them as she pleases, but she did grudgingly draw some rough ideas of them for us."

Jean studied the wide-skirted, peasant-waisted sketches with interest. "I've always loved Spanish costumes," she said. "These look positively rapturous."

"I do think they'll be lovely," Mrs. Parkinson agreed. "She promises they will be authentic as well as becoming. And she's even giving you a choice between ribbons and embroidered braid or both." She laid samples of brilliant Mexican embroidery beside bits of colored ribbon. Gayly they discussed them, made their choices.

"I'll take them to my first thing tomorrow," Mrs. Parkinson promised as she rose to leave. "Now for a cool tub myself. See you at dinner, dear."

Jean dressed leisurely in a cool-flowered organdy, and wandered down to the patio. And as she felt the first cool evening breeze with the tang of the ocean in it, she remembered again her strange adventure of the previous night, and the unknown boat. She had not told Steve. In the rush of factual office routine, an unknown, even unlawfully-run boat seemed an inconsequential matter. Perhaps it had been the Coast Guard cutter, anyway, although she was sure once again that it had a different sound.

Through the gate she saw Curley's swaggering figure passing the swimming pool. On sudden impulse, she ran to join him. She could ask him if he ever used the Parkinsons' boat, anyway.

"What's your hurry?" she said, catching up with him.

Even before he turned, she could see for herself. Ahead of him, between the twin rows of eucalyptus trees that made a sheltered walk to the quaint rancho chapel, Rosita was running!

"Oh, I beg your pardon," Jean turned to go back to the house. But Curley, after one quizzical instant of hesitation, swung her around again.

"Come on. Go to church with me."

She was caught off guard at the wording of his invitation and found herself walking beside him for want of an excuse, as they moved on down the tree-shaded lane, resolutely in the sunset.

They went slowly into the darkness of the tiny chapel. Curley made no move to go farther than just inside the door, and he stood there watching the distant slender figure of Rosita, kneeling before three lighted candles at the dim altar, with such absorption he seemed entirely to forget Jean's presence.

Only when Rosita moved up the aisle to pass them did Curley's natural spirits return. He took one of Jean's arms and one of Rosita's and led them out of the chapel and back along the path.

For Friday, June 4

ACCORDING to the contradictory configurations in this day's astrological pattern, there may be some definite and unlooked-for crises to be met and manipulated. With tongue, temper, impulses and feelings under firm and unfaltering control there is every promise of success and pleasant relations in both business and private life. Impetuosity and excess may provoke reprisals and restraint is indicated.

If It Is Your Birthday
Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year in which happy and lucrative results depend a great deal upon the individual character and its temperamental or emotional control. With excess energies properly directed, and reasonable handling of the feelings and speech, serious dangers and regrets may be averted. Maintain calm.

High Ideals
A child born on this day may have excellent talents, high ideals, creative and romantic urges of note, but may prove its own undoing by its ungovernable emotions and impulses. Careful training will help.

At the present time there are three large centers for Polish refugees in India.

Peter Comforts Persecuted Christians

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 6 is I Peter 3:13-17; 4:12-16; 5:6-10, the Golden Text being I Peter 3:17, "For it is better, if the will of God should so will, that ye suffer for well-doing than for evil-doing.")

"WHO IS he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good?" Peter asks the question of the Christians in Asia Minor who were suffering persecutions for their faith. Peter must have been worried about these people, worried because of what he knew they must be suffering, worried for fear, perhaps, they might be tempted to give up their faith in fear of death.

So he took up his pen and wrote them letters of comfort, letters of hope, words intended to make them not only strong enough to stand firm in their faith, but to glorify that faith and render them happy even in their many trials or martyrdom.

"If ye suffer for righteousness sake, happy are ye: and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled."

Next he tells them to have a good answer ready for "every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you, with meekness and fear." Men were expected by the Greeks to be able to give ready answers to questions about their opinions, and to discuss intelligently and temperately their reasons for such opinions or faiths. They were told to answer questions, not in fear or in a beligerent manner, but with becoming meekness, having good consciences.

To Shame Slanderers
By this attitude those who spoke of them as evil doers should be ashamed of so doing because of their good conversation in Christ. "For it is better, if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well-doing, than for evil-doing."

"Beloved," Peter writes, "think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you. But rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings." Fiery trials, indeed, were in store for many of these Christians. They were classed on a level with thieves and murderers and the Roman state was bound to crush them—stamp them out.

It was natural that they should wonder why they were persecuted so fiercely as if they were criminals, when they taught and practiced a religion of love. But their leader and master, Christ, had suffered death, so they should not be surprised, and if they, too, were crucified, they could "share Christ's sufferings" in their own way. They should therefore be happy, and rejoice in this.

"Let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief or as an evildoer, or as a busybody in other men's matters."

Meddling in other people's affairs was a serious offense in the Roman world, just as in the days of the Puritans, when "gossips were ducked in the pond."

"Yet if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf." They were to hold their heads up proudly. They were not criminals, but good men suffering for their faith.

Finally, they were admonished to "humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that He may exalt you in due time."
"Casting all your care upon Him; for He careth for you."

They were in God's care, so why should they be burdened? Satan might walk about as a roaring lion, "seeking whom he may devour." They should cast their burdens on Him and remain steadfast in their faith, accepting their afflictions, and "the God of all grace, who hath called us unto His eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stabilize, strengthen, settle you."

Methodist Women Hear Settlement Works Talk

Erma Jenkins Gives Details Of Activity

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Miss Erma Jenkins of the South Side Settlement, Columbus, was guest speaker Thursday at the meeting of the Woman's Society for Christian Service of the Methodist church. An excellent group of members heard her tell of the activities and numerous community services of the center.

Miss Jenkins reported that 16 nationalities, besides the Negro race, are represented in the work of the settlement. She said that 50 were enrolled in the kindergarten last winter. One hundred and thirty boys, formerly of the settlement classes, are in the armed forces of the country and are in all parts of the world. One boy is a prisoner on Bataan.

Citizenship classes, baby clinics, dental clinics, children's and mothers' club, boy and girl scouts are a part of the activities of the settlement work. Miss Jenkins announced that 300 children are now enrolled in the Daily Vacation Bible school. The settlement is a Methodist institution, supported in part by organizations of the local church.

Mrs. G. H. Adkins presided at the session which opened with group singing of the hymn, "This is My Father's World," with Mrs. Alfred Lee as accompanist. Miss Letha Belle Beaver led the devotion, the subject being "When I Consider the Work of Thy Fingers," piano duet, Mrs. Herschel Hill and daughter, Theresa.

Miss Mattie Gearhart, supply secretary, read a letter of thanks from Miss Ethel Harpist of the Methodist home, Cedarhurst, Ga., for clothing the society had sent to Becky Carter, a pupil of the school. Mrs. Malcolm Parrett, a former member of the W. S. C. S., sent a gift to the group.

Other musical numbers on the program were a piano solo, "From County Derry," by Betty McClure and a piano solo, "Festa Polonaise," Nell Louise Bumgarner. Miss Bumgarner played the accompaniment for the "Star-Spangled Banner" which concluded the session.

Circle 6 of the W. S. C. S. served the noon luncheon to 157 guests. The organization recessed until September.

Hedges Chapel W. S. C. S.

Hedges Chapel W. S. C. S. joined the Ever Ready Sunday school class at the quarterly birthday dinner Thursday. The cooperative dinner at noon was followed by the June session of the W. S. C. S.

Prayer by Mrs. Homer Reber, president, opened the meeting, members joining in repeating the Lord's prayer. Following the routine business hour, Mrs. Will Hay, assisted by Mrs. Lida Brinker and Miss Thelma Plum, presented the devotion.

Deercreek Garden Club

Mrs. John H. Dunlap Jr. was elected president of the Deercreek Garden club Thursday at its meeting at the home of Mrs. Lee Luellen, Williamsport. Mrs. Brance Johnson will serve as first vice president and Mrs. George McGhee, as second. Mrs. Will Hayes will be treasurer for the coming year and Miss Carolyn Bochard, secretary.

Mrs. Joe Varney conducted the business hour during which the club voted to sponsor a Service Honor Roll to be placed in Williamsport and which will bear names of those from the village and the school district who are serving their country.

Miss Bertha Jones, program leader, discussed summer flowers of many varieties. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Luellen and others of the hospitality committee.

Circle 2

Circle 2 of the W.S.C.S. of the Methodist church will meet with Mrs. Guy Heffner, Saltcreek township, Tuesday, June 8, for its regular meeting. A covered dish dinner will be served at 12 o'clock. Members are asked to take cancelled sales tax stamps to the meeting.

Peter Comforts Persecuted Christians

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 6 is I Peter 3:13-17; 4:12-16; 5:6-10, the Golden Text being I Peter 3:17, "For it is better, if the will of God should so will, that ye suffer for well-doing than for evil-doing.")

"WHO IS he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good?" Peter asks the question of the Christians in Asia Minor who were suffering persecutions for their faith. Peter must have been worried about these people, worried because of what he knew they must be suffering, worried for fear, perhaps, they might be tempted to give up their faith in fear of death.

So he took up his pen and wrote them letters of comfort, letters of hope, words intended to make them not only strong enough to stand firm in their faith, but to glorify that faith and render them happy even in their many trials or martyrdom.

"If ye suffer for righteousness sake, happy are ye: and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled."

Next he tells them to have a good answer ready for "every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you, with meekness and fear." Men were expected by the Greeks to be able to give ready answers to questions about their opinions, and to discuss intelligently and temperately their reasons for such opinions or faiths. They were told to answer questions, not in fear or in a belittling manner, but with becoming meekness, having good consciences.

To Shame Slanderers

By this attitude those who spoke of them as evil doers should be ashamed of so doing because of their good conversation in Christ. "For it is better, if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well-doing, than for evil-doing."

"Beloved," Peter writes, "think it not strange concerning the fiery

trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you. But rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings." Fiery trials, indeed, were in store for many of these Christians. They were classed on a level with thieves and murderers and the Roman state was bound to crush them—stamp them out.

It was natural that they should wonder why they were persecuted so severely as if they were criminals, when they taught and practiced a religion of love. But their leader and master, Christ, had suffered death, so they too, were crucified, they could "share Christ's sufferings" in their own way. They should therefore be happy, and rejoice in this.

"Let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief or as an evildoer, or as a busybody in other men's matters."

Meddling in other people's affairs was a serious offense in the Roman world, just as in the days of the Puritans, when gossips were ducked in the pond.

"Yet if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf." They were to hold their heads up proudly. They were not criminals, but good men suffering for their faith.

Finally, they were admonished to "humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that He may exalt you in due time."

"Casting all your care upon Him; for He careth for you."

They were in God's care, so why should they be burdened? Satan might walk about as a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour. They should cast their burdens on Him and remain steadfast in their faith, accepting their afflictions, and "the God of all grace, who hath called us unto His eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stabilize, strengthen, settle you."

REDLEGS RESTING AFTER TURNING BACK BOSTON

CINCINNATI, June 4—The Cincinnati Reds enjoyed a day of rest today after recording, to the delight of 7,086 night-game fans, a 7 to 4 victory over the Boston Braves.

A four-run uprising in the eighth inning saved the ball game for Johnny Vander Meer, who was having one of his wild streaks. However, Johnny went the entire route, although allowing 10 hits and walking eight men. Six Braves went down swinging.

The Redleg attack was led by Estel Crabtree, Eric Tipton and Vander Meer himself. Each got two hits, one of Tipton's being a double and giving him the honor of knocking in three runs. Crabby, the Felsenville veteran, batted in two counters.

The Reds were behind 4 to 3 when the Reds went to bat in their half of the eighth. Four runs sewed up the game.

Johnny McCarthy led the losers' attack with four singles.

AAU CHIEF SAYS HAEGG WILL RUN JUNE 19-20

NEW YORK, June 4—Dan Ferris, secretary of the A. A. U., reiterated today that Gunder Haegg, sensational Swedish distance runner, would compete in the National A. A. U. championships in New York, June 19 and 20.

Haegg is enroute to this country aboard a tanker and is scheduled to dock at New Orleans Tuesday. "Haegg accepted an invitation from the A. A. U. to run in the meet," Ferris said. "And that is why we are bringing him here."

"There is no financial loss sustained should he suffer a defeat in his first American start. I'm sure the American public will appreciate that he'll be competing under a handicap, two weeks after a twenty-six day sea voyage. He will have several other races here in which he can redeem himself should he meet defeat in the championships."

SHAKING KNEES

EVANSTON, Ill.—"Chuck" Warren, quarterback on Northwestern university's football team, recently made his first solo flight at the Coffey School of Aeronautics at Oaklawn, Ill., where he is a naval cadet. Just before taking off he said: "I felt like I did in the Notre Dame game last fall when Coach Waldorf said: 'O. K., Chuck, go in and turn on the power.' Man, my knees were shaking."

SIX OUT OF TEN

AMES, Ia.—Obstacle course runners from the Iowa State College Naval Training Schools have taken over six of the top ten places on the honor roll for the Cyclone course. The navy men now rank second, fifth, sixth, seventh, ninth and tenth with the college men holding the other four spots. Paul Koprucki, of Davenport, with a record of 1.54 holds first place.

COLUMBUS TURNED BACK BY MINNEAPOLIS CREW

By International News Service
Only two games were played yesterday in the American Association as postponements were called for Louisville's game at Milwaukee and the Indianapolis tilt at Kansas City.

The Columbus Red Birds remained in second place in the standings although suffering a 7 to 6 defeat at the hands of the Minneapolis Millers. Francis (Red) Barrett, who won the previous game was charged with the defeat. Jack Creel started hurling for the Birds but was replaced in the sixth frame by Barrett.

The visitors made three runs in each the first and fifth frames. The Millers behind the pitching of Scheetz, Bain and Mosely scored the first run in the fourth, four more in the sixth, one in the seventh and the final tally in the eighth.

Meanwhile the St. Paul aggregation won the second straight game from the visiting Toledo Mud Hens to the tune of 8 to 7. Ortho Nicholas was credited with the win for the Saints. Loy Hanning did mound duty for the losers.

CHICAGO CARDS WILL CONTINUE GRID PLANS

CHICAGO, June 4—Charles Bidwell, owner of the Chicago Cardinals in the National Football league, said today that the resignation of Jimmy Conzelman as coach would not alter his plans to continue operation of the club during the 1943 season.

Bidwell was surprised by the action of Conzelman, who quit football to go to St. Louis as assistant to Donald Browns, president of the St. Louis Browns. He will be in charge of the Browns' public relations department and will serve in the same capacity for the American Investment Company of Illinois, of which Barnes also is the head.

Conzelman's successor as coach for the Cardinals had not been selected, although Bidwell admitted he was considering Phil Handler, who has been assistant coach for the last three years.

Conzelman was expected to return to Chicago from St. Louis today to wind up his affairs.

SECOND GOLF SKIPPER

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Capt. Gene Fehlg, No. 1 man on the Notre Dame golf squad, is the second member of his family to captain an Irish links squad. Gene's brother, Lou, captained the 1937 team which won 7 matches, lost 2, and tied 2.

ONLY ONE LOSS

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Rev. George Holderrith, CSC, coach of the Notre Dame golf team, has had only one losing season since taking over the team in 1933. During that period Father Holderrith's squads have won 69 matches, lost 15 and tied 3.

Yankees Move One Tilt Ahead In American Race

NEW YORK, June 4—Hard as they might try the Washington Senators can't take a real stranglehold on the American league pennant race and today they are back a full game behind the pace-setting New York Yankees after having been in a virtual first place tie before festivities of yesterday.

The Yankees moved away from them again through the combination of a neat Yankee victory over the St. Louis Browns, 2 to 1, during the afternoon coupled with a Senator setback last night against the Detroit Tigers, 8 to 2.

The Yanks won their game in the last half of the ninth with two away when Pitcher Bob Muncief walked Bill Johnson to force in the margin of victory for Ernie Bonham, who thus scored his fifth triumph of the season. He allowed only four hits and had a shutout spoiled by George McQuinn's home run.

The Tigers beat the Senators with a big seventh inning to change the entire course of a previously tight ball game. Rudy York hit a homer for the Tigers. The Philadelphia Athletics clubbed out seven doubles, two triples and nine singles to beat the Cleveland Indians, 10 to 4. Don Black hurled the victory.

The Chicago White Sox downed the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 4, with a five-run rally in the third frame.

Lou Klein Again

With Lou Klein pacing the attack by knocking out four hits, the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Philadelphia Phillies, 8 to 2.

RADIO RIGHTS BOUGHT FOR ALL-STAR CONTEST

CHICAGO, June 4—Radio rights for the 1943 all-star baseball game between picked teams of the National and American leagues today became the property of a safety razor company.

The game, which will be played under the lights in Shibe park, Philadelphia, July 13, will be broadcast exclusively over the Mutual Broadcasting system network. A short wave broadcast of the game also will be sent to American forces overseas.

Announcement of the deal was made by Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis who said the company paid $25,000 for the radio rights. All receipts will be turned over to the major leagues' baseball equipment fund for the armed forces.

CHALKY WRIGHT LIKED OVER PHIL TERRANOVA

NEW YORK, June 4—Albert (Chalky) Wright, Los Angeles Negro veteran of 300 fights, today was a 2 to 1 favorite over Phil Terranova, New York youngster, for their 15-round bout tonight at Madison Square garden.

The latter has had only 29 professional fights and lacks a real punch to use against the former featherweight title-holder in their elimination over the championship route.

The winner is slated to meet Willie Pep, of Hartford, Conn., New York commission title-holder, in the latter's next defense before he enters the armed services.

Both Terranova and Wright concluded their training yesterday in top shape.

COUNT FLEET-AFTER RECORD FOR ALL TIME

Horse Could Be First To Sweep Through Five Major Contests

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, June 4—Count Fleet tomorrow will attempt to become the first thoroughbred in history to sweep through the Wood Memorial, the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness, the Withers and the Belmont Stakes and at the same time he will be out to continue along the trail leading toward the all-time money-winning record.

He will be about one to 20 to win the Belmont Stakes and thus among the shortest priced favorites ever to run in the event, and nothing short of a disaster can keep him from making it another spreadeagle for a $25,000 add-on purse to be poured into the till which already holds $224,960 of his winnings. He is ahead of Whirlaway at this stage of the proceedings and horsemen say if he stays sound figures to pass Mr. Big Tail's current all-time high of $560,911.

The Count is much of a horse and would still stand high above the rest of the contenders even with greater ones in the competition.

While he will be trying to be the first to take the five big ones of these days, he will also be in there busting away toward the finish in completion of the trip, crown of turfdom, which is encompassed within the five. The triple crown composed of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont has been won by only five before—Sir Barton, Gallant Fox, Omaha, War Admiral and Whirlaway.

They were all pretty good horses too. But probably not in the class of the Hertz hurricane. The most grudging judges finally are getting around to saying the Count may be the best of all time. Yes, that includes Man O' War. The final answer will come tomorrow and through his handicap career.

One of the main points about tomorrow's race is that he will have no competition and the rest will be in there strictly for $5,000 second money, $2,500 third and $1,000 fourth.

If the utterly unexpected should develop and some of the rest should really make a run for it, then Johnny Longden merely will turn him loose and with that they probably will set a new record for the mile and a half classic which is getting its 75th, or diamond jubilee running.

There isn't much point in going into the fact that the Count is an all-time two-year-old record last year, that he has run away from his fields as a three-year-old and that presumably he is in peak form. The only thing necessary to mention is that he probably will win by as many lengths as Longden deems a safe margin.

Should he be beaten it would be the biggest upset in modern racing history. I don't know how far back "modern" is, but it covers the situation.

By way of preparing for the Belmont, Count Fleet breezed a mile and a quarter in 2:04, Kentucky Derby time. All he has to do is carry his speed a quarter of a mile farther tomorrow. The Derby is at a mile and a quarter, of course, against the Belmont's mile and a half.

After the Belmont he will begin to look around for some place to rest for a minute, then he will go in other big fixtures and undoubtedly windup sooner or later against Whirlaway, Alab and the rest of the older horses at weight-for-age.

That's when his real test will come, but in this connection the horsemen insist that he will be a strong candidate to take all comers in those events at all distances. He can pack a load fast and at lighter weight will be fairly sprinting against the more heavily burdened contention, so he says.

In any case, unless he trips, runs through the fence, or decides to run backwards or is overtaken by some other such untoward incident tomorrow, he has the Belmont in the satchel. It will take ill luck to beat him, not just running.

REDLEGS RESTING AFTER TURNING BACK BOSTON

CINCINNATI, June 4—The Cincinnati Reds enjoyed a day of rest today after recording, to the delight of 7,086 night-game fans, a 7 to 4 victory over the Boston Braves.

A four-run uprising in the eighth inning saved the ball game for Johnny Vander Meer, who was having one of his wild streaks. However, Johnny went the entire route, although allowing 10 hits and walking eight men. Six Braves went down swinging.

The Redleg attack was led by Estel Crabtree, Eric Tipton and Vander Meer himself. Each got two hits, one of Tipton's being a double and giving him the honor of knocking in three runs. Crabby, the Nelsonville veteran, batted in two counters.

The Reds were behind 4 to 3 when the Reds went to bat in their half of the eighth. Four runs sewed up the game.

Johnny McCarthy led the losers' attack with four singles.

AAU CHIEF SAYS HAEGG WILL RUN JUNE 19-20

NEW YORK, June 4—Dan Ferris, secretary of the A. A. U., reiterated today that Gunder Haegg, sensational Swedish distance runner, would compete in the National A. A. U. championships in New York, June 19 and 20.

Haegg is enroute to this country aboard a tanker and is scheduled to dock at New Orleans Tuesday. "Haegg accepted an invitation from the A. A. U. to run in the meet," Ferris said. "And that is why we are bringing him here."

"Unlike in a professional debut there is no financial loss sustained should he suffer a defeat in his first American start. I'm sure the American public will appreciate that he'll be competing under a handicap, two weeks after a twenty-six day sea voyage. He will have several other races here in which he can redeem himself should he meet defeat in the championships."

SHAKING KNEES

EVANSTON, Ill.—"Chuck" Warren, quarterback on Northwestern university's football team, recently made his first solo flight at the Coffey School of Aeronautics at Oaklawn, Ill., where he is a naval cadet. Just before taking off he said: "I felt like I did in the Notre Dame game last fall when Coach Waldorf said: 'O. K., Chuck, go in and turn on the power.' Man, my knees were shaking."

SIX OUT OF TEN

AMES, Ia.—Obstacle course runners from the Iowa State College Naval Training Schools have taken over six of the top ten places on the honor roll for the Cyclone course. The navy men now rank second, fifth, sixth, seventh, ninth and tenth with the college men holding the other four stops. Paul Koprucki, of Davenport, won a record of 1.54 holds first place.

COLUMBUS TURNED BACK BY MINNEAPOLIS CREW

By International News Service
Only two games were played yesterday in the American Association as postponements were called for Louisville's game at Milwaukee and the Indianapolis tilt at Kansas City.

The Columbus Red Birds remained in second place in the standings although suffering a 7 to 6 defeat at the hands of the Minneapolis Millers. Francis (Red) Barrett, who won the previous game was charged with the defeat. Jack Creel started hurling for the Birds but was replaced in the sixth frame by Barrett.

The visitors made three runs in each the first and fifth frames. The Millers behind the pitching of Scheetz, Bain and Mosely scored the first run in the fourth, four more in the sixth, one in the seventh and the final tally in the eighth.

Meanwhile the St. Paul aggregation won the second straight game from the visiting Toledo Mud Hens to the tune of 8 to 7. Ortho Nicholas was credited with the win for the Saints. Loy Hanning did mound duty for the losers.

CHICAGO CARDS WILL CONTINUE GRID PLANS

CHICAGO, June 4—Charles Bidwell, owner of the Chicago Cardinals in the National Football league, said today that the resignation of Jimmy Conzelman as coach would not alter his plans to continue operation of the club during the 1943 season.

Bidwell was surprised by the action of Conzelman, who quit football to go to St. Louis as assistant to Donald Barnes, president of the St. Louis Browns. He will be in charge of the Browns' public relations department and will serve in the same capacity for the American Investment Company of Illinois, of which Barnes also is the head.

Conzelman's successor as coach for the Cardinals had not been selected, although Bidwell admitted he was considering Phil Handler, who has been assistant coach for the last three years.

Conzelman was expected to return to Chicago from St. Louis today to wind up his affairs.

SECOND GOLF SKIPPER

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Capt. Gene Fehlig, No. 1 man on the Notre Dame golf squad, is the second member of his family to captain an Irish links squad. Gene's brother, Lou, captained the 1937 team which won 7 matches, lost 2, and tied 2.

ONLY ONE LOSS

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—Rev. George Holderrith, CSC, coach of the Notre Dame golf team, has had only one losing season since taking over the team in 1933. During that period Father Holderrith's squads have won 69 matches, lost 15 and tied 3.

Yankees Move One Tilt Ahead In American Race

NEW YORK, June 4—Hard as they might try the Washington Senators can't take a real stranglehold on the American league pennant race and today they are back a full game behind the pace-setting New York Yankees after having been in a virtual first place tie before festivities of yesterday.

The Yankees moved away from them again through the combination of a neat Yankee victory over the St. Louis Browns, 2 to 1, during the afternoon coupled with a Senator setback last night against the Detroit Tigers, 8 to 2. The Yanks won their game in the last half of the ninth with two away when Pitcher Bob Muncie walked Bill Johnson to force in the margin of victory for Ernie Bonham, who thus scored his fifth triumph of the season. He allowed only four hits and had a shutout spoiled by George McQuinn's home run.

The Tigers beat the Senators with a big seventh inning to change the entire course of a previously tight ball game. Rudy York hit a homer for the Tigers. The Philadelphia Athletics clubbed out seven doubles, two triples and nine singles to beat the Cleveland Indians, 10 to 4. Don Black hurled the victory.

The Chicago White Sox downed the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 4, with a five-run rally in the third frame.

Lou Klein Again

With Lou Klein pacing the attack by knocking out four hits, the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Philadelphia Phillies, 8 to 2.

RADIO RIGHTS BOUGHT FOR ALL-STAR CONTEST

CHICAGO, June 4—Radio rights for the 1943 all-star baseball game between picked teams of the National and American leagues today became the property of a safety razor company.

The game, which will be played under the lights in Shibe park, Philadelphia, July 13, will be broadcast exclusively over the Mutual Broadcasting system network. A short wave broadcast of the game also will be sent to American forces overseas.

Announcement of the deal was made by Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, who said the company paid $25,000 for the radio rights. All receipts will be turned over to the major leagues' baseball equipment fund for the armed forces.

CHALKY WRIGHT LIKED OVER PHIL TERRANOVA

NEW YORK, June 4—Albert (Chalky) Wright, Los Angeles Negro veteran of 300 fights, today was a 2 to 1 favorite over Phil Terranova, New York youngster, for their 15-round bout tonight at Madison Square garden.

The latter has had only 29 professional fights and lacks a real punch to use against the former featherweight title-holder in their elimination over the championship route.

The winner is slated to meet Willie Pep, of Hartford, Conn., New York commission title-holder, in the latter's next defense before he enters the armed services.

Both Terranova and Wright concluded their training yesterday in top shape.

COUNT FLEET AFTER RECORD FOR ALL TIME

Horse Could Be First To Sweep Through Five Major Contests

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, June 4—Count Fleet tomorrow will attempt to become the first thoroughbred in history to sweep through the Wood Memorial, the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness, the Withers and the Belmont Stakes and at the same time he will be out to continue along the trail leading toward the all-time money-winning record.

He will be about one to 20 to win the Belmont Stakes and thus among the shortest priced favorites ever to run in the event, and nothing short of a disaster can keep him from making it another spreadeagle for a $25,000 add-on purse to be poured into the till which already holds $224,960 of his winnings. He is ahead of Whirlaway at this stage of the proceedings and horsemen say if he stays sound figures to pass Mr. Big Tail's current all-time high of $569,911.

The Count is much of a horse and will stand high above the rest of the contenders even with greater ones in the competition.

While he will be trying to be the first to take the five big ones of these days, he will also be in there busting away toward the finish in completion of the triple crown of turfdom, which is encompassed within the five. The triple crown composed of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont has been won by only five before — Sir Barton, Gallant Fox, Omaha, War Admiral and Whirlaway.

They were all pretty good horses too. But probably not in the class of the Hertz hurricane. The most grudging judges finally are getting around to saying the Count may be the best of all time. Yes, that includes Man O' War. The final answer will come tomorrow and through his handicap career.

One of the main points about tomorrow's race is that he will have no competition and the rest will be in there strictly for $5,000 second money, $2,500 third and $1,000 fourth.

If the utterly unexpected should develop and some of the rest should really make a run for it, then Johnny Longden merely will turn him loose and with their they probably will set a new record for the mile and a half classic which is getting its 75th, or diamond jubilee running.

There isn't much point in going into the fact that the Count is an all-time two-year-old record last year, that he has run away from his fields as a three-year-old and that presumably he is in peak form. The only thing necessary to mention is that he probably will win by as many lengths as Longden deems a safe margin.

Should he be beaten it would be the biggest upset in modern racing history. I don't know how far back "modern" is, but it covers the situation.

By way of preparing for the Belmont, Count Fleet breezed a mile and a quarter in 2:04, his Kentucky Derby time. All he has to do is carry his speed a quarter of a mile farther tomorrow. The Derby is at a mile and a quarter, of course, against the Belmont's mile and a half.

After the Belmont he will begin to look around for some place to rest for a minute, then he will go in other big fixtures and undoubtedly windup sooner or later against Whirlaway, Alab and the rest of the older horses at weight-for-age.

That's when his real test will come, but in this connection the horsemen insist that he will be a strong candidate to take all comers in those events at all distances. He can pack a load fast and at lighter weight will be fairly sprinting against the more heavily burdened contention, so they say.

In any case, unless he trips, runs through the fence, or decides to run backwards or is overtaken by some other such untoward incident tomorrow, he has the Belmont in the satchel. It will take ill luck to beat him, not just running.

HERE'S TO ROMANCE

Buddy Clark will sing "These Foolish Things," as his highlight vocal number Sunday, 6:05 p. m. over the Blue network. David Broekman's orchestra will play "Eighteenth Century Drawing Room," "Brazil," and "Mexican Fantasy." Clark, with the Chordsters and the orchestra, will sing "Moonlight Madonna," and "All or Nothing at All." Jim Ameche will emcee the program.

"MAN BEHIND GUN"

Heroes of the land, sea, and air are familiar to listeners of "The Man Behind the Gun" dramas heard Sunday nights at 9:30 p. m. over the Columbia network. However, for the war story to be heard Sunday, June 6, a new member of Uncle Sam's fighting forces makes his debut on the program--a canine member of the WAGS. The amazing story of man's best friend, trained to become our foe's worst enemy forms one of the most exciting stories in the dramatic series. The drama concerns itself with a dog hero who distinguishes himself valiantly in an epic story of jungle warfare. All stories heard on "The Man Behind the Gun" are based on authentic war accounts. William M. Robson is producer of the program.

HILDEGARDE TO GUEST

Hildegard, favorite chanteuse of New York's cafe society, will be the guest of NBC's ace sports-caster Bill Stern on the Friday, June 11 airing of his Sports

Newsreel at 10:30 p. m. Bill's interview with Hildegard will highlight another of his popular weekly shows noted for their fast-moving drama, human interest stories and up-to-the-minute news from the world of sports.

BRIEF RADIO NOTES

The smoke has finally cleared and the off-again, on-again status of Dinah Shore as a Summer replacement for Charlie McCarthy on NBC Sunday nights at 8 p. m. leads will remain the same as when the series was heard on another network but several finds her ready to star on the series starting this coming Sunday. All contractual wrinkles and other commitments which gave rise to conflicting statements as to Dinah's availability have been ironed out to the satisfaction of all concerned.

When "Those We Love" starts as a replacement for Jack Benny over NBC Sunday, June 6, at 7 p. m., the leads will remain the same as when the series was heard on another network but several new character will be added. Newcomer to the cast is Ann Brook, who will have an important role.

Maestro Felix Mills' Summer assignment to handle music on the "Date With Judy" program gives the leader the assignment he likes: writing original music. Felix has three popular numbers to his credit.

When Horace Heidt comes to New York with his "Treasure Chest" troupe this Summer he'll follow Phil Spitalny and the "Hour of Charm" all-girl orchestra into the Capitol Theatre on Broadway. Heidt is now touring with his Tuesday night NBC music makers, stopping at theatres and army camps enroute to Gotham.

New high in rehearsal schedule is being set by Charlie Ruggles, Mary Astor and Mischa Auer for their new Thursday CBS wine-sponsored program. To insure perfect production, they are holding three preliminary sessions.

June Point Table Changes Few Processed Food Values.

TOMATO JUICE REQUIREMENTS CUT IN HALF

Slight Shifts Expected In Other Commodities During Summer

OUTLOOK SEEMS BRIGHT

OPA Acts To Simplify And Improve National Rationing Program

Office of Price Administration indicated Friday when it announced its June table of point values for processed foods that there is little possibility of any fundamental changes being made this Summer in the rationing system at least so far as processed foods are concerned.

The June table of point values listed only one minor change from last month's point list, the value of tomato juice being reduced from four to two points for a one pound unit because sales have been less than expected and because dealers' stocks will be increased this month.

The table, effective Sunday, June 6, covers canned and bottled fruits and vegetables, soups, baby foods, frozen foods, dried peas, beans and lentils.

Other Juice Affected

OPA said that the reduction, applying also to all vegetable juice combinations containing 70 percent or more of tomato juice, thus places the point values of vegetable juices on the same level as most fruit juices.

No other point values were changed in the new list, which is effective through July 3. Officials called changes in the period between June 6 and July 3 "extremely unlikely."

It was learned that the present point values will probably not be greatly changed during the Summer months, unless there is a serious crop failure or the armed forces make unexpectedly large demands for processed foods.

In announcing the point table, Paul O'Leary, OPA's ration chief, asserted that "the processed foods program, with gratifying success, has overcome a number of difficulties during its first three months of operation."

Monthly Tables

"Barring unforeseen and unpredictable emergencies, point changes will be restricted to once a month in keeping with OPA policy," he said.

"This will serve the convenience of consumers and merchants alike. It is OPA's purpose to ease the burden of rationing in any way that this can be done without imperiling the war program of fairly sharing scarce commodities."

At the same time, OPA took those actions intended to simplify and improve the ration program:

1. Changed the way of calculating the point value of corn-on-the-cob in the frozen foods classifications from six points per pound to one point per ear.
2. Listed on the June point table every item rationed.
3. For the first time rationed industrial container sizes of frozen foods.
4. Indicated on the official table all changes in values by placing a star next to the newly-established point value.

OPA also pointed out that dried and dehydrated soups will continue to remain off the ration list during June.

As a result of the changed point value for tomato juice, a unit of the juice weighing between 10 ounces and one pound two ounces will cost two points; a unit weighing between one pound, 6 ounces and two pounds, three points; a unit weighing between two pounds 12 ounces, and three pounds, four points.

Effective Sunday along with the new table on processed foods is OPA's June revision of the meat point values which increases beef cuts from one to four points.

MAD DOG SCARE SENDS PETS TO VETERINARIANS

Several families in the Seyfert avenue district are keeping close watch on their dogs and having them vaccinated against rabies following an Ohio State university laboratory report that the pet owned by Edward Phebus, Seyfert avenue, was afflicted with rabies. The report was received Thursday by Police Chief W. F. McCrady after he took the head of the Phebus dog to the university.

Dogs owned by Dr. Robert Hedges, Robert Thomas and Erwin Leist were reported to have been bitten by the Phebus dog earlier in the week.

So far as is known no children were bitten by the canine, Chief McCrady said, although several youngsters of the district played with the dog during the week.

MARINE CORPS PAYS HONOR TO COL. MACKLIN

Colonel John D. Macklin, son of Mrs. D. W. Macklin of Saltcreek township, was honored Friday by the Marine Corps headquarters in Washington D. C. when it sent him a letter of commendation for his part in the successful Marine assault on the Solomon islands last August.

Colonel Macklin, who is 48 and a former superintendent of schools at Groveport, serves as munitions officer for the First Marine Division. This unit was one of the first to attack Guadalcanal in the early Fall offensive which finally resulted in removal of all Japanese from the strategic Pacific base.

Colonel Macklin was granted a leave of absence by his Groveport board of education when the United States was thrown into the war. He has been on active duty ever since. His wife, Frances C. Macklin, lives in Groveport.

Two other Marine Corps officers who had important roles in the Solomon attack were also honored with letters of commendation for the parts they played.

One was Major James C. Murray, Jr., 30, adjutant and assistant chief of staff with the First Marine Division. Murray planned and supervised plans for the landing of the First Division on Guadalcanal. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Murray, Sr., live at Seville, Ohio.

Another honored with a letter of commendation was Lieutenant Colonel Randolph Pate of St. Paul, Minn., who also helped prepare plans for the Guadalcanal invasion.

SLAUGHTERERS QUOTA SLASHED UNDER JUNE, 1941

Meat quotas for local slaughterers during June have been established at 80 percent of the quantity of meat animals they slaughtered in the corresponding month of 1941. Announcement of the quotas was made Friday by the War Food Administration.

This percentage to local slaughterers will remain in effect until further notice. Previously, percentages for local slaughter have been announced on a month to month basis.

War Food administration announced at the same time that all local slaughterers are now required to make monthly reports of their slaughter operations. Monthly reports from butchers, who slaughtered more than 10,000 pounds of livestock in 1941 but not more than 300,000 pounds are also required, but only for those months when their slaughter exceeds 4,000 pounds live weight.

The purpose of requiring these reports is to enable WFA officials to determine the quantity of livestock slaughtered by these two types of slaughterers and to check compliance with food distribution orders which require all types of slaughterers to take out permits, and establishes slaughter quotas.

Butchers are required to mail their reports within five days after the end of each month; local slaughterers within 10 days.

Reports from butchers must tell the number and total live weight of each kind of animal slaughtered during the month. Reports from local slaughterers must include the number of head, the live weight of livestock slaughtered, and the conversion weight of meat delivered to government agencies and authorized processors.

Affected persons should mail their reports to the Food Distribution Administration, 5 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

June Point Table Changes Few Processed Food Values.

TOMATO JUICE REQUIREMENTS CUT IN HALF

Slight Shifts Expected In Other Commodities During Summer

OUTLOOK SEEMS BRIGHT

OPA Acts To Simplify And Improve National Rationing Program

Office of Price Administration indicated Friday when it announced its June table of point values for processed foods that there is little possibility of any fundamental changes being made this summer in the rationing system at least so far as processed foods are concerned.

The June table of point values listed only one minor change from last month's point list, the value of tomato juice being reduced from four to two points for a one pound unit because sales have been less than expected and because dealers' stocks will be increased this month.

The table, effective Sunday, June 6, covers canned and bottled fruits and vegetables, soups, baby foods, frozen foods, dried peas, beans and lentils.

Other Juice Affected
OPA said that the reduction, applying also to all vegetable juice combinations containing 70 percent or more of tomato juice, thus places the point values of vegetable juices on the same level as most fruit juices.

No other point values were changed in the new list, which is effective through July 3. Officials called changes in the period between June 6 and July 3 "extremely unlikely."

It was learned that the present point values will probably not be greatly changed during the summer months, unless there is a serious crop failure or the armed forces make unexpectedly large demands for processed foods.

In announcing the point table, Paul O'Leary, OPA's ration chief, asserted that "the processed foods program, with gratifying success, has overcome a number of difficulties during its first three months of operation."

Monthly Tables
"Barring unforeseen and unpredictable emergencies, point changes will be restricted to once a month in keeping with OPA policy," he said.

"This will serve the convenience of consumers and merchants alike. It is OPA's purpose to ease the burden of rationing in any way that this can be done without imperiling the war program of fairly sharing scarce commodities."

At the same time, OPA took those actions intended to simplify and improve the ration program:

1. Changed the way of calculating the point value of corn-on-the-cob in the frozen foods classifications from six points per pound to one point per ear.

2. Listed on the June point table every item rationed.

3. For the first time rationed industrial container sizes of frozen foods.

4. Indicated on the official table all changes in values by placing a star next to the newly-established point value.

OPA also pointed out that dried and dehydrated soups will continue to remain off the ration list during June.

As a result of the changed point value for tomato juice, a unit of the juice weighing between 10 ounces and one pound two ounces will cost two points; a unit weighing between one pound, 6 ounces and two pounds, three points; a unit weighing between two pounds 12 ounces, and three pounds, four points.

Effective Sunday along with the new table on processed foods is OPA's June revision of the meat point values which increases beef cuts from one to four points.

SLAUGHTERERS QUOTA SLASHED UNDER JUNE, 1941

Meat quotas for local slaughterers during June have been established at 80 percent of the quantity of meat animals they slaughtered in the corresponding month of 1941. Announcement of the quotas was made Friday by the War Food Administration.

This percentage to local slaughterers will remain in effect until further notice. Previously, percentages for local slaughter have been announced on a month to month basis.

War Food administration announced at the same time that all local slaughterers are now required to make monthly reports of their slaughter operations. Monthly reports from butchers, who slaughtered more than 10,000 pounds of livestock in 1941 but not more than 300,000 pounds are also required, but only for those months when their slaughter exceeds 4,000 pounds live weight.

The purpose of requiring these reports is to enable WFA officials to determine the quantity of livestock slaughtered by these two types of slaughterers and to check compliance with food distribution orders which require all types of slaughterers to take out permits, and establishes slaughter quotas.
